WARMEST REGARDS

Something about wet women really grabs me where I live, especially when it's a prime young thing like your February '88 covergirl and centerfold, "Regina: Taking the Heat." I also like that her tits weren't too big or made of plastic. Her fresh looks, attractive smile and delicate pink pussy also turned me on. I'll take her heat anytime.

SCORING POINTS

Just two points concerning the January '88 issue: First, the article "Guide to Safe Sex" makes no mention of sex with intravenous drug users. It is a fact that the greatest increase in the number of AIDS carriers comes from drug users, and not through sexual practices. If we do not stress this fact, the spread of AIDS will continue, further hindering open sexual practices. Another point not mentioned was sex with prostitutes. Sex with whores can be extremely dangerous in that many prostitutes are selling their bodies in order to keep up their drug habits. Although many whores are clean, your chances of encountering the disease increase when dealing with them.

–D. F.
Westwood, New Jersey

We stressed checking out potential partners, including having them AIDS-tested, as well as looking for "signs" of the disease, which could include needle marks. The article was intended primarily to guide readers through the less obvious precautions concerning safe sex.

STROKES OF GENIUS

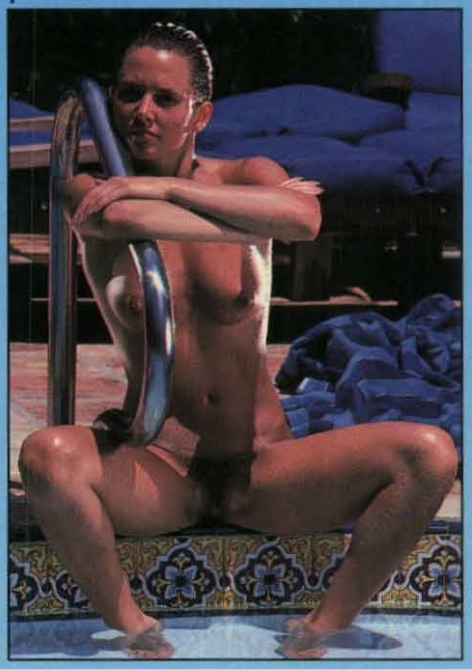

I've been an avid reader of your magazine for some ten years now. I've always loved those great close-up shots of an open, wet pussy that no other mag can match. All the gals are gorgeous, and I'd love to lick every one of their juicy cunts. My tongue would be in ecstasy to probe their cute little assholes. I also enjoy Beaver Hunt, because they are everyday women, not models or actresses. December's Beaver Hunt was one of your all-time greats. January started off good with Juice from New Mexico, and Jeannie from East Detroit.

–K. A.
Lansing, Michigan

I have enjoyed your magazine very much for over five years. Although some issues are better than others, I have never felt that I didn't get every penny's worth from an issue of HUSTLER. The only thing you've ever done to piss me off is reduce your Beaver Hunt section from five to three pages. It's taken me a while to write, but I had to tell you how disappointed I was. Friends of mine who also read HUSTLER turn to Beaver Hunt first, like I do, after purchasing an issue. Why was it reduced? Is there any chance that you'll enlarge it? You are the very best, HUSTLER. Playboy and Penthouse are for wimps and Boy Scouts. Your humor is unbeatable, and beautiful female feet rule.

–"Motorhead," USS Enterprise

We need your Beavers! We'd gladly restore Beaver Hunt to five pages if we were flooded with irresistible entrants. Be sure to check page 85 for all the details, and get your gals in gear.

Regina: Taking the Heat

IF HE CAN'T TAKE A JOKE . . .

I just watched the episode of Nightline on ABC that featured Jerry Falwell and Larry Flynt debating the issue of satire in the media. Words cannot express how appalled I am over the fact that the First Amendment is under relentless attack by hypocritical, sanctimonious hucksters like Jerry Falwell. The debate centers on whether the media has the right to satirically criticize public figures, even to a point that the persons find profoundly unpleasant. Flynt's position, that no one and nothing is so sacred that it is above criticism, finds support with me and other Americans who strive to see that our Constitution is upheld. It is important that people realize that the satirical ad in HUSTLER was not intended to be taken as a legitimate news article. It was intended to be a comical piece of satire, not to be taken seriously, and this was explicitly stated under the ad. Falwell claims severe emotional stress as the basis for his argument that he should receive compensation, although he provides the court with no real, objective evidence of such agonizing stress. Interestingly, the court's initial ruling that HUSTLER was not liable for slander and the subsequent awarding of $200,000 to Falwell is inconsistent; such a decision is unprecedented and unfounded on any rational basis. Clearly, Falwell's suit is just another one of his attempts to revoke guaranteed First Amendment protection to any publication that has the audacity to criticize him and his right-wing constituents for the overly pious, self-righteous hypocrites that they really are. –W. P. M.

Monroe, Louisiana

I want you to know that I support Larry Flynt's fight against Jerry Falwell. And I thought you'd like to know what that disgusting little turd tunnel said when Geraldo Rivera asked him his opinion of people who read porn, or engage in so-called abnormal sexual behavior outside of marriage. Falwell said they are "subhuman." Shit! And he says you're offensive. It should be known that Falwell isn't suing for libel only; it's due to the fact that Larry Flynt and HUSTLER Magazine merely upset him. Maybe we all should sue Falwell for calling us subhuman. In any case, this would be a very dangerous precedent to which there would be no end. –M. A. S.
Columbus, Ohio

Congratulations! Paying Jerry Falwell a mere 200,000 skins to advertise HUSTLER on national television, and in every major newspaper in the country, would not only be the perfect irony; it's unquestionably a stroke of genius. There are many self-righteous bigots in America today waiting for the chance to boost HUSTLER's sales, and their hurt feelings cost little. So don't waste any time–offend them before their rates go up. –D. A.

MOTIVATED MAMA THINKS PINK

I am a 21-year-old female reader of this magazine, and I love saying important things, then having them published. I am an active member of SANE/FREEZE (a merged organization promoting peace and the eradication of nuclear arsenals), of Citizens for Social Responsibility (a political action organization), and last but not least, Women for Pornography. My love for life comes from personal security, honesty, and support of our Constitutional freedoms and rights. I saw Larry Flynt on TV, on the CBS Evening News with Dan Rather. The segment concerned Jerry Falwell's suit against HUSTLER and the incest-implied ad parody. I'm with Larry Flynt, with journalists, cartoonists, humorists, and intelligent people the world over.

I hope the First Amendment still works! People shouldn't bust arteries over harmless jokes; I say "harmless" based on the common knowledge of Jerry Falwell's saintliness. Keep fulfilling men's and ladies' fantasies with your sensuous photography, and thanks for the wonderful political, humorous and creative pages of HUSTLER. For motivated readers who are nonhypocritical, I'd like to drop the address for Constitution-supporters: Women for Pornography, P.O. Box 1116, Wheeling, Illinois 60090. –R. N. R.

HUSTLER, YOU MOTHER. . . .

This must be considered junk mail from God. I found your magazine in my 17-year-old son's bedroom as I was changing the sheets. Jeff is on probation and is very hard to deal with; so I want you to know how I intend to try and get trash like yours out of circulation, because it does not help anyone. I hope that the women in this magazine never have to deal with a rape situation caused by your magazine, and I hope that your grandchildren never have to deal with this type of trash. With so many beautiful things to enjoy in this world, I cannot understand how you can take something as beautiful as a good sexual relationship and turn it into such an ugly, disgusting act. How can young people have a healthy relationship when you are saying it's okay to teach, practice and enjoy such acts? You are saying use whatever means possible to get satisfaction. It stinks! I pray to God that you will turn away from such abnormal behavior, and I hope that you don't have children who'll read it and suffer from it. –W. F.
Webb City, Missouri

It sounds like you're trying to blame us for your son's discipline problems. Are we next after the schools, courts and television? We wish we had the influence everyone gives us credit for so we could persuade people to stop their tight-assed hypocritical repression, or at least to take responsibility for raising their own kids. As long as you can blame us, you'll never have to face the fact that you aren't doing your job.

Do you have a comment, suggestion or complaint? We want to hear it. Send your letters (typed or neatly handwritten) to Feedback, HUSTLER, 9171 Wilshire Blvd, Suite 300, Beverly Hills, CA 90210. Please include a phone number if you want your letter considered for publication.

GRAFFILTHY

6 THANX AND $50 TO OUR CONTRIBUTOR

"I said, 'How'd you like to be the richest fuckin' nigger in the world?!"

Patrol Post 50, respond to a 1054 at the Martinique Hotel." A phone call goes to the 911 operator in New York City from a welfare hotel in Midtown South. A 1054 is an "aided," a distress call for an ambulance which is automatically relayed from the 911 emergency prefix to the New York Police Department dispatch, then routed to the area concerned. The Martinique is a well-known hotspot for NYPD. There's no need for dispatch to relay the street address–49 West 32nd–to the beat cop on patrol because this particular flophouse is a haven for addicts, pushers, hookers and other criminal elements.

"Patrol Post 33 will back up 1054 at the Martinique." Another beat cop from the immediate area, Zone 3 off of Sixth Avenue, is en route to assist.

The two cops are informed that the call originated from Room 311, a woman claiming difficulty breathing. The two police officers meet in front, then go upstairs to check it out, finding a young Puerto Rican girl whom they recognize as a neighborhood prostitute. The girl is pregnant, about to go into labor. From her appearance they also know she is a junkie. One of the cops calls in: "Put a rush on the bus [ambulance]." The girl stops breathing, prompting one of the cops to administer CPR.

That enactment is an everyday occurrence in big cities across America. But now that AIDS and its related diseases are considered by medical authorities to be in epidemic proportions, those same lowly-paid individuals who are responsible for our safety and well-being are at even greater risk while performing their duties, expected to assume the additional responsibilities that are inherent with the potential exposure to AIDS.

Put yourself in the position that the fictitious man in blue was in. Would you administer CPR to a known junkie or prostitute? For a cop on the front line of city streets like those of San Francisco–with their large homosexual population–or Los Angeles or New York, there's no choice. The job and mandate of being a police officer is, first and foremost, that he or she assist anyone in need of help, regardless of the circumstances or the physical danger involved. This is an accepted facet of the job they have sworn to uphold. Realistically, every police officer, by the very nature of his profession, is at some risk of exposure to AIDS–as are paramedics and emergency room staffers, though the prehospital care personnel are better equipped to avoid exposure to AIDS.

Illustration by Stephen Sterling

How, then, do civil servants come to find themselves in a situation where there is the potential for exposure to the AIDS virus? Whenever physical contact is made with any person fitting the high-risk group profile: Cuban and Haitian immigrants, intravenous drug users, homosexuals, homeless derelicts and homophiliacs.

A police officer or emergency services technician might then contract the AIDS virus through limited contact of mucosal surfaces (mouth, rectum, nose, genitals or an open sore or cut) with a body secretion from the AIDS transmitter, such as blood, sweat, urine, saliva or feces. This type of contact falls well within the performance of many police and paramedic duties.

What this means is that police might contract the AIDS virus if: 1) an AIDS carrier spits in an officer's or paramedic's face, and the spittle then enters his or her eyes, nose or mouth; 2) an officer or emergency technician with an open cut or sore comes into contact with a bleeding AIDS carrier; 3) a police officer or firefighter comes into contact with bloody or sweaty personal property of an AIDS carrier, and later puts a finger in his or her mouth or eyes without first washing the hands; 4) a policeman is a bit by an AIDS-infected individual.

In New York City, there have been cases where the perpetrator of a crime has threatened to bite or spit at police officers while they attempted to apprehend the suspect. So in light of this potentially deadly and hazardous situation, what protective measures and policy doctrines have been adopted by police departments, paramedics and emergency room technicians to prevent the spread and contraction of AIDS in their respective workplaces?

In San Francisco, the Police Officers' Association (POA), as well the department itself, have produced information bulletins on safety awareness, the legal ramifications of AIDS and the police force, and the resources available to them. These include the Laerdal pocket mask, and for some officers a bag-valve mask device has been issued on an interim basis until a more advanced article can be developed. (The Laerdal mask contains a protective element which deters the transmission of infectious diseases and contamination).

New York City's finest have been outfitted with surgical-type gloves for use whenever they provide assistance to a person who, through visual distinction or questioning, may be considered an AIDS carrier. An area of serious concern to NYPD is when the victim is in need of CPR or mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, actions which the department surgeons have stated will not cause the rescuer to contract AIDS. The surgeons, though, do realize the psychological impact facing any officer expected to perform this task and have developed alternate means to provide air to a victim. Among these is a plastic device, or bellows, that duplicates mouth-to-mouth while preventing actual contact with the victim's mouth. Other devices are being tested and researched by NYPD 's surgeons to determine what will eventually become department issues to all precincts and patrol officers.

The San Francisco Police Department Evidence Collection Squad has been given protective clothing to cover pants and shoes in the course of duty. Use is contingent upon notification that an AIDS carrier is present at the scene, either by the suspect in custody or a witness. In addition, the SFPD requires documentation by the individual officer, in the form of a memo, detailing his exposure to AIDS in any fashion. This information is kept in the policeman's personnel file. These measures were enacted not by an AIDS-related legislative position or effort, but as part of a blanket doctrine on all infectious diseases. (The gloves, however, were issued in 1983 directly in response to AIDS.)

As for paramedics and those responsible for prehospital field care, how have they moved to insulate themselves from AIDS? In Los Angeles, the county paramedics, as well as all emergency trauma room personnel, are equipped with Ambu-bags that depress the tongue, maintaining an artificial airway or passage. The paramedics in Los Angeles have always used resuscitators, but in response to the AIDS crisis, they now use gloves for any trauma calls.

As for any effect that the protective measures have had, no San Francisco police officer has contracted AIDS through the course of duty, yet; those SFPD members who have contracted the disease were high-risk category members to begin with.

In short, those entrusted with field care medical assistance have another reason to look over their shoulder. Whether they be police officers, firefighters, emergency services technicians or trauma room staffers, a hazardous job with noncommensurate pay has become even more dangerous. But so far, their protective measures are paying off.

SEX AND THE DISABLED

Illustration by John Andrews

BY RICK WOODS

Many areas in the sexual world have remained hidden for too long behind the doors of fear, ignorance, inexperience and hypocrisy. In keeping with HUSTLER Magazine*'s belief that the repression of any and all sexual information is physically and emotionally damaging, we present this series of revealing articles to keep your sexual knowledge current, to lessen your inhibitions and–ultimately–to make you a much better lover.*

The problem of exploring one's own sexuality is a problem that everyone has. Being physically disabled, it's harder to explore one's sexuality. I was 34 years old, without any sexual experience; so I was determined to initiate myself. I had a good mate there (at the hospital). He was one of the care assistants. He told me, 'Well, if you find yourself anybody–a prostitute or whatever–then depend on me. I'll take you there and bring you back.' So I found a prostitute, and the attendant gave me a lift out there.

"She was a bit freaked out by the fact that this guy carried me up the stairs, plopped me down and said, 'Here he is.'

"The lady fulfilled a very useful purpose, and I am eternally grateful to her. I had a smile on my face for about three days."

This story by Nick Finden, a disabled Englishman, was broadcast in The Skin Horse, a controversial PBS documentary. The film focused on the once-taboo subject of sex and the disabled. Many people still find the topic hard to discuss. Even in the late '80s, the thought of handicapped people having sex is upsetting to some. Be that as it may, the truth is that the disabled have sexual desires that are just as strong as those of "normal" people, and are now coming out in the open about their needs.

Doctors have found that their paraplegic, quadriplegic and cerebral palsy patients all had normal levels of sex hormones. Yet, the handicapped are not seen by society as sexual beings. Harilyn Rousso, a psychotherapist and social worker who was born with cerebral palsy, says, "Disabled people are seen as asexual, sick, childlike and dependent."

"People with physical problems face an extraordinary kind of discrimination. It's the worst, the most harrowing kind of discrimination that exists anywhere." Richard Severo makes a strong claim, but he knows what he's talking about. His series of articles for the New York Times in 1981 on Lisa H.–who suffered from neurofibromitosis, or the Elephant Man's disease–was nominated for a Pulitzer prize. He has spent long hours in the company of the disabled, and is also handicapped. "We are really programmed to accept people who look like and act like us, and programmed to set apart those people who are a little bit different. I don't even like to use the word disabled because a lot of people think disabled means unable–and they're not unable."

In an attempt to educate disabled and able-bodied people, two doctors and a technical consultant in human sexuality have written an informative how-to guide. Sexual Options for Paraplegics and Quadriplegics is a common-sense pamphlet for disabled people who are ready, willing and, with a little help, able to enjoy sex. Doctor Cole, Dr. Chilgren and Thomas O. Mooney discuss the problems of satisfying sexual desires when disabled, and they offer a variety of solutions.

For those free from handicaps, the biggest sexual problem they may face is, "Who do I have sex with?" For the disabled, it's not only the problem of who, but also the problem of, "How do I have sex if I ever find a partner?" Answering the question of how was the purpose of Sexual Options.

Besides who and how, the disabled have many other obstacles to overcome on the road to sexual fulfillment. Many doctors, nurses, relatives and friends of the disabled aren't likely to encourage the handicapped to have sex. They would prefer to pretend that the disabled are not even thinking about sex. There are some exceptions, and in some hospitals it's rumored that attendants will actually pick up and place people who are too disabled to move themselves into position for sex with other patients.

If a disabled person is lucky enough to be in a supportive environment and finds a sex partner, the body still presents difficult problems. For men, the biggest challenge may be to achieve and maintain an erection and, if possible, ejaculate. However, according to Sexual Options, "When a disabled person is unable to enjoy sex, the greatest obstacle to enjoyment usually isn't the difficulty of making particular movements, but the social convention that sex consists of putting the penis in the vagina, that all the rest of the rich range of human sexual responses–oral, manual and skin stimulation–are abnormal."

Still, many disabled people's first choice is intercourse. Many men who are unable to get a hard-on under normal circumstances can have what is called a reflex erection. A reflex erection can result from manual or oral stimulation of the groin or anus. Some disabled men cannot have a reflex erection and opt for a permanent erection via penile implant.

If a man can't get hard and doesn't want an implant, he can try stuffing. Stuffing his flaccid penis into his partner's vagina while she thrusts her hips and uses her vaginal muscles to draw him in can often bring about a reflex erection. Some disabled men utilize a stiffener, which is a molded piece of hard rubber that fits over the penis, holding it stiff enough for penetration. Waterbeds can be helpful for handicapped couples who need aid in establishing a strong thrusting motion.

By using sensory amplification and alternative sensation techniques, disabled men–whether they can achieve an erection or not–can enhance their sexual pleasure. Sensory amplification is the process of concentrating on a feeling so that it becomes more intense. Shutting out all thoughts and distractions, then focusing totally on the feeling of your lover's touch can make sensations more intense for people who have difficulty feeling touch in certain areas of the body. Alternate sensation is a feeling in one part of the body that is mentally transferred to another part of the body. If a disabled man has little feeling below the waist, he can mentally transfer the feeling of his lover nibbling his ears and nipples to less-sensitive parts of his body.

Disabled men can also enjoy vicarious, or mental, orgasms by tuning in to their partner as she climaxes. Many wheelchair-bound men are expert cunnilinguists, and they get a lot of pleasure by getting their lady off orally. Jon Voight gave an inspiring performance as the paralyzed Vietnam vet who licked and sucked Jane Fonda to heights her macho Marine husband was unable to in Coming Home. But with the exception of Coming Home, Hollywood has done little to portray the disabled as sexual beings. The X-rated movie industry has also avoided the disabled, with the exception of Long Jeanne Silver and her stump-fucking antics, and other limited-edition fetish flicks. Hopefully, the disabled will have more positive role models, like Jon Voight's character, in the future.

Disabled people also often have to endure wearing catheters and colostomy bags. These devices have an effect the opposite of sexy underwear. A lot of understanding is needed for sex to work for the handicapped. Social clubs where the disabled can meet away from the often dehumanizing atmosphere of hospitals are beginning to appear.

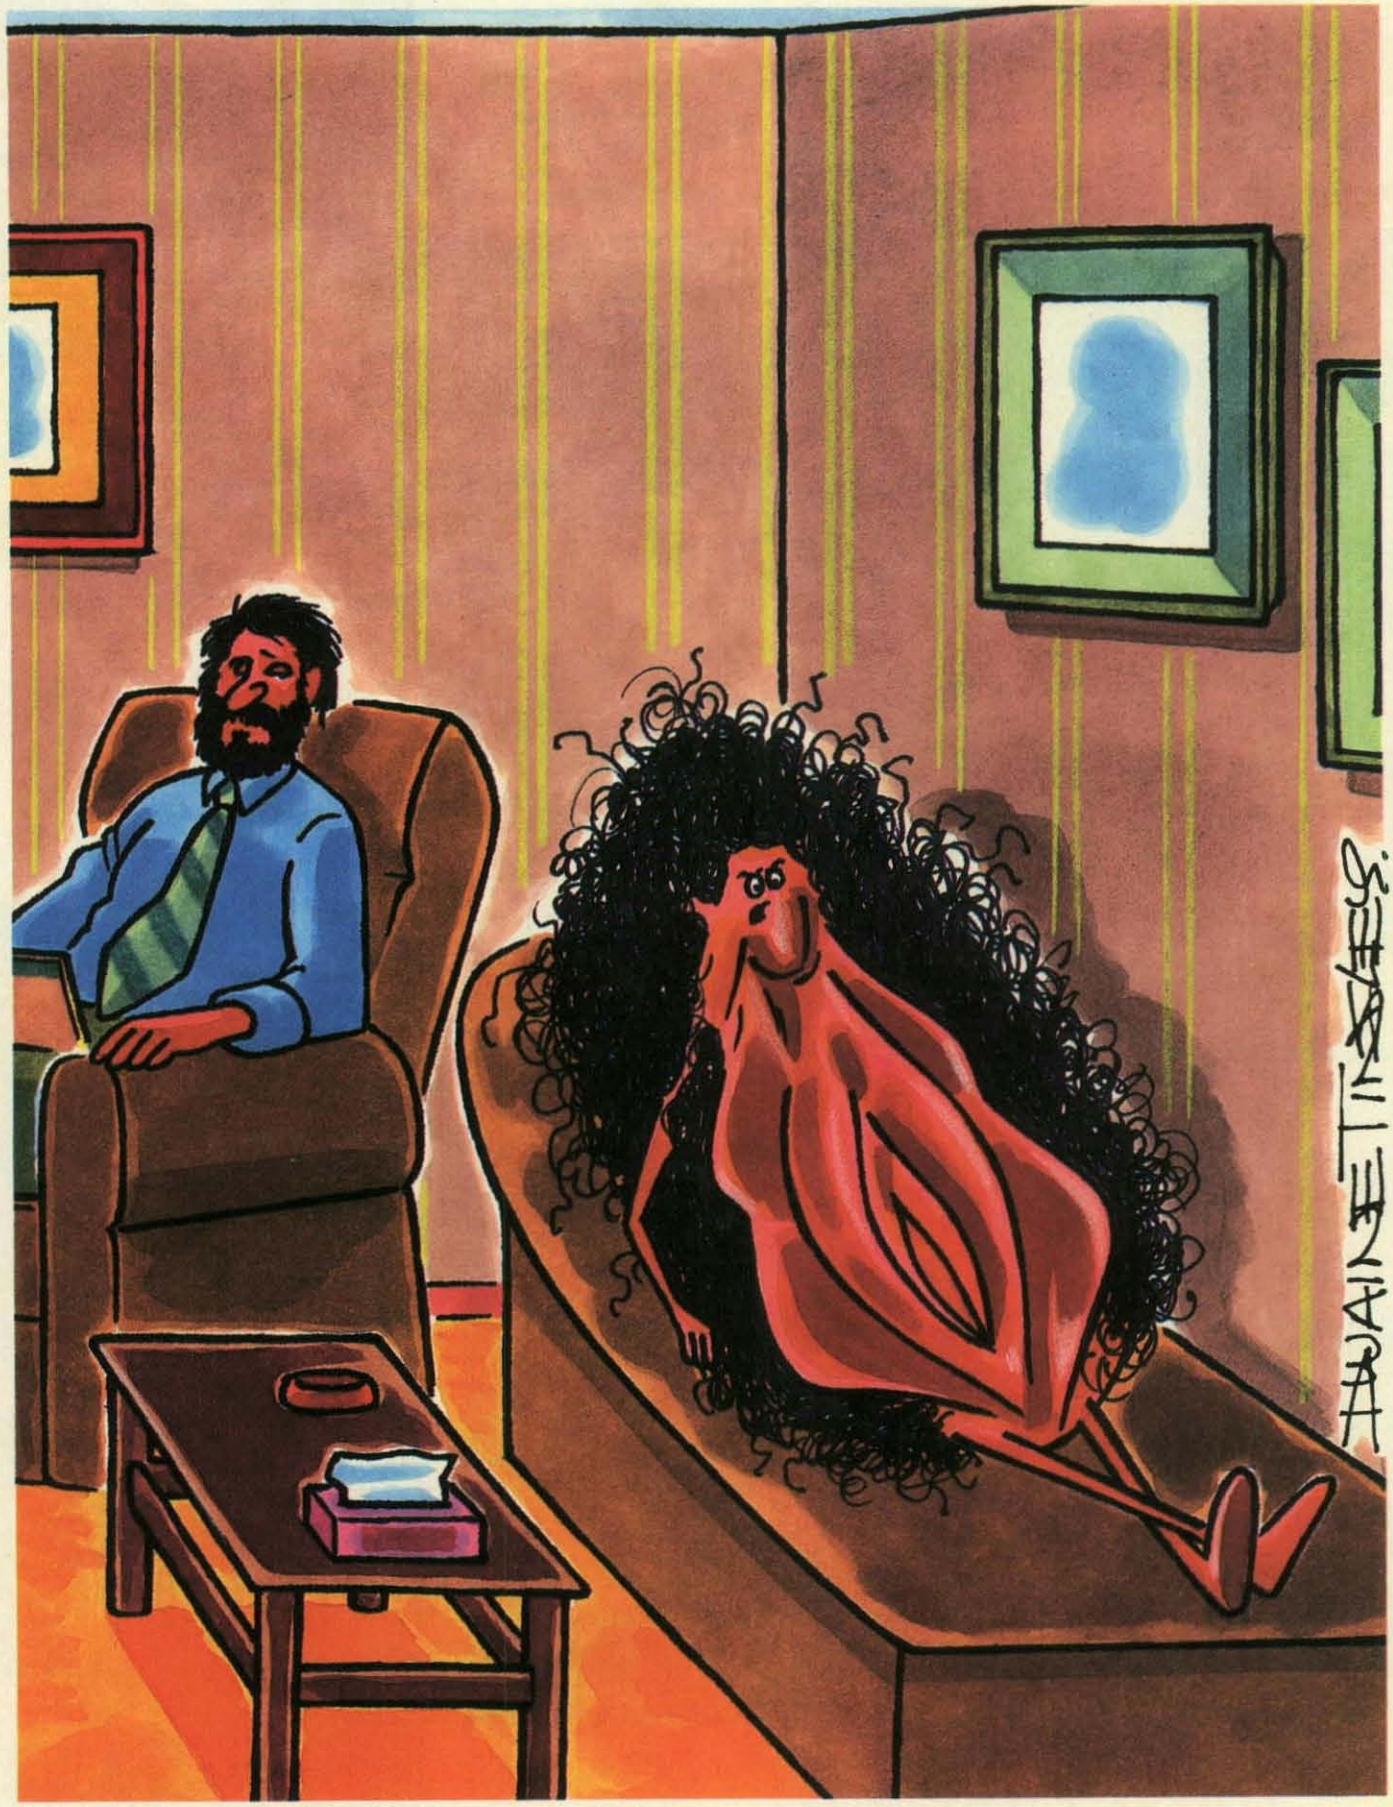

The Outsiders Club is a dating agency for the disabled that has created some controversy. An English newspaper ran a story on the club, with headlines that read, "Sin, Sex and the Disabled." The average reader must have imagined a sideshow-freak orgy, but the club has been a good place for the handicapped to meet, fall in love and have sex.

Kathleen Venner has cerebral palsy and is confined to a wheelchair. She describes an average day at the Royal Hospital and Home for Incurables: "At 7:30 a.m. I am washed, dressed and put in my chair. I go downstairs, and there I remain with the other incurables until after supper, when I am put back to bed by a nurse. Can you imagine being trapped here for 34 years? Sometimes I ache for the human contact that I've been denied–for a new face that isn't a nurse or another incurable. It's this sense of waste that I resent most of all. It's as if people like me are somehow supposed to live our lives beyond frustration." For her, the Outsiders Club offers hope where she thought none existed.

More organizations like the Outsiders Club are desperately needed by the disabled. These clubs promote knowledge and compassion–things we all could use a helluva lot more of. Instead of being infatuated with their own looks and egos, disabled people may be more inclined to reach out to others. Tina Leslie, who has a disfigured face and no hands, is not afraid to declare, "I like men. I don't want to take refuge in something that disabled women use as an excuse to suppress their sexuality." If beauty is only skin-deep, maybe seeing below the surface of a disabled person will reveal someone more loving and sexually open than many so-called beautiful people.

"Say, Doc, could ya give him some smelling salts while I get his mouthpiece?"

"I'm tired of being thought of as only a sex object!"

PRENUPTIAL NOOKIE

Recently I was married to my childhood sweetheart, making me the happiest woman in Cleveland. My sister, Terri, decided that she must help me rid all remnants of singlehood from my system, and set up a special party for me–on my wedding day!

As I dressed in the bridal room at the church and enjoyed a moment of solitude, my sister entered the suite with a huge grin on her pretty face. Following my sister was her husband, Burt; Burt's brother, Michael; my best girlfriend, Kathy; and her husband, Ronald.

Terri and Kathy approached me slowly. Then they began to unzip my wedding gown while I watched Ron, Burt and Michael quickly undress. I started in on my brother-in-law's thick cock, getting it to stand up rock-hard in only a matter of seconds. Burt grunted loudly as my tongue flicked the base of his cock and on up the length of his shaft. While sucking Burt's cock, I simultaneously held Michael and Ron's dicks, slowly, methodically jerking them off. A few minutes later, I alternated blowjobs on Ron and Michael's rods.

Ron has an average-size dick, but his balls are massive and extremely hairy. Sucking on Ron's nuts really turned me on, and I could feel my juices flow. Burt's brother, Michael, swings an eight-inch wonder cock.

All this torrid cocksucking made me hornier than hell. Now I wanted to get fucked–and good. I slowly leaned back on the floor of the bridal room and spread my legs wide. Sliding two fingers into my gooey snatch, I rubbed my clit, ready for a gang-bang reaming. As I masturbated for my three men, they all followed suit by stroking their stiff dicks furiously. When I took my slippery fingers from my folds, Ron dropped to his knees and licked off the juice. Then he slid up my body and pushed his rod into me. Ron pumped his thick dick in and out of my quim without stopping.

Michael then knelt beside me, holding his twitching tool next to my lips. I licked around its bulbous tip. When I opened my mouth, Michael began pushing his prick deep down my throat.

As Ron and Michael were pumping my cunt and mouth, Burt was at my side, gently massaging my tits and erotically biting my hard, excited nipples. In the background I noticed Kathy snapping pictures of us with a Polaroid. It looked as though Kathy wanted to join her husband and get fucked herself, but my girlfriend held back, since it was my own special day. Mysteriously though, my sister Terri was nowhere to be seen.

Just as I thought that Ron's erection would last forever, his face went through a whole series of contortions while he frantically plunged his dick deeper and harder into my cunt. Quickly he pulled his knob out and shot thick globs of cum on my stomach. With my fingers, I gently coaxed the final few drops of spunk from Ron's rapidly shrinking penis.

Ron rolled off of me, to be quickly replaced by Michael. His long, angular shaft slid in easily, and just seeing his dick plunge the depth of my pussy brought me to orgasm. Immediately he pulled his prick out, spraying my heaving breasts and face with his load. While he was shooting his spunk, Michael quickly scrambled up my chest to deposit his last few drops of cum down my throat. I'd never swallowed a man's ejaculate prior to my wedding day, but I was more than willing now to savor his sex syrup. Burt then approached me, took my lace panties–which were hanging around my left ankle–and wiped the jizz from my tits and stomach. While Burt squeezed my tits and explored my hairy muff, he told me that he had fantasized about fucking me for the longest time. I stopped for a second to acknowledge that I was about to fuck my brother-in-law.

It was at that very second that my sister Terri walked in the room, accompanied by my husband-to-be, Marcus. Terri must have previously explained her gang-bang setup, for my future spouse leaned back in a corner of the cramped room and kept quiet. Now I wanted to give Marcus a show. I pushed Burt down on his back, then plunged myself onto his groin. After about two minutes of suction on his schwanz, I crawled over and sat on his engorged cock. I spread my legs wide so that Marcus could see Burt's cock slide along my wet pussy lips. Burt held onto my hips, arching his cock up farther inside of me. Approaching another orgasm, I pushed hard against Burt's beef, wildly gyrating my hips. Then I glanced over to see my sister and my best friend on each side of Marcus, rubbing his cock. While I performed a raunchy sex act with my girlfriend's husband, she and my sister kept my soon-to-be husband's boner busy.

Michael rejoined the action by offering me his hard-on to savor with my mouth. It took only a few seconds of my tongue on his cock for Mike to shoot off again, this time spraying my dangling tits with jism. Burt then began to come as I slid off of him in an effort to catch his spunk in midair.

But then came a knock on the door from my mother, checking to see if I

Just as she laid the rag on my penis to wash it, I leaned forward and gave her a kiss.

needed any help putting my gown on. Shocked back to reality, we all put fingers to our lips as I spoke up, saying everything was fine. Luckily, the door was locked. I'm glad Kathy took some pictures of the action. They are my souvenirs of the best wedding gift a girl ever had.

QUAD COOZE

I remember when I first grabbed an issue of HUSTLER and read an article about Larry Flynt being shot, confining him to a wheelchair. Well, he and I have something in common.

I was driving a motorcycle two weeks after my 18th birthday when I fell off, breaking my cervical spine at "C4-5-6." In layman's terms, I broke my neck, leaving me paralyzed from the chest down. Now I am confined to a wheelchair for the rest of my life. I have good arm movement, but very little finger movement. I need help with everything from dressing to going to the bathroom. I have to be transferred to bed, or wheelchair, with another person's help.

My injury was higher than Larry's, leaving me a quadriplegic: not able to sit up, or turn side to side when lying on my back, without someone assisting me. When I'm on my back, I'm at the mercy of the person who is taking care of me.

So, after understanding my physical state, can you try and imagine sex?

In the mornings I have a nurse who visits to help me with my daily cares: showering, getting dressed, hygiene, etc. The first time I saw Kim, we both said hi. Then she looked at me and smiled. The first thing I noticed was her sandy-brown hair with a slight glow to it. She had smooth legs that led up to a perfectly rounded tight ass. Her chest was small, but very firm. I was pleased at the new aide the company had sent me. After a few days of explaining and training her, she finally got into the swing of things. The first week is always embarrassing for the aide and the handicapped individual. Kim was seeing my entire body naked, while I could only dream about seeing hers. When you're a quadriplegic, you don't just meet a girl and go back to her place, get out of the wheelchair and climb all over each other. It takes weeks, months even, just to get a date.

Anyway, it all started on a Monday morning. Kim came to my place to get me ready for the day. I knew we were mutually attracted to each other; so I started complimenting her. Kim helped me into the shower and started scrubbing my body from head to toe. Just as she laid the rag on my penis to wash it, I leaned forward and gave her a kiss. Kim said she had wanted to kiss me for days but was afraid. I smiled, rubbing my arm playfully against hers.

As I looked at her, I could see her nipples through her wet shirt. Instantly Kim responded as I slid my tongue into her mouth. She still had the rag and started to slowly rub my balls. I can feel wherever someone touches my body; I just can't respond.

As Kim continued rubbing around with the washcloth, I ran my hand over her tits. Her nipples were very firm and sticking straight out. She moaned, and I had muscle spasms in my legs, which threw them apart.

My aide ran her tongue up and down my dick a few times, making it spring into action. I started to caress her cunt. As I was rubbing her pussy through her white cottons, I felt her pants give way. I looked down and saw the most beautiful shaved pussy I've ever seen. I lowered my hand to her pussy and started slowly, then moved faster and faster. In response, Kim spread her legs and lay back. As I was doing my job, she stroked my cock. I was feeling pretty good. Then suddenly, I felt Kim jerk and spasm. My physical aide had an orgasm that wouldn't stop. She was really hot now and mounted my stiff cock.

As Kim sat facing me, legs wrapped around me, slowly moving her tight cunt up and down my shaft, I felt pulling muscles in my groin. Suddenly I started to jerk, and I shot my load inside her. Even after I was done, she just kept riding, clamped tightly around my body. Then I felt her orgasm shooting over my entire cock.

We sat in that position kissing and caressing, and let the warm water run over us. I gave her a small kiss, and she said, "One more time," but I couldn't take it. I was exhausted! It had been a long time since I had been that active. However, this was one form of physical therapy I thoroughly enjoyed, and would recommend to anyone with a spinal cord injury.

BITS and PIECES

ASSHOLE OF THE MONTH

Mike Royko

When Mike Royko suggests physical harm as a way to settle disputes over the public's unfettered right to satirize behavior of public figures, he not only cuts his own throat with his poison pen, but becomes Asshole of the Month.

Royko is a very self-impressed columnist whose syndicated ramblings convey his opinion, what he imagines are other people's opinions or ideas, and the made-up conversations with his made-up "friend," who lays off any other half-baked notions that emanate from a Chicago-based cow chip like Royko.

Such presentations–while appearing on op-ed pages or sometimes being labeled commentary–usually leave it up to the reader to determine that the column is satirical, or parodizes behavior. It is just that right that led to the Flynt-Falwell confrontation about which Royko loosed a stream of soft stool. Using that same right to parody, Royko nonetheless attacked its defender, Larry Flynt, including calling him a string of childish names that would never qualify that Chicago stockyard hay stain to write this column.

Larry not only believes that nothing, including himself, is sacred, but occasionally chuckles at the intended humor, no matter how slight. But Royko stepped beyond limits of journalistic responsibility that even HUSTLER recognizes.

Hurting someone's feelings through satire is sometimes the result of the sting of truth. However, this rancid dung sluice suggested that Flynt be "turned into little pork sausages," and that a shooting duel would be a better way to settle the issue than to take the matter to the courts.

Beyond the insensitivity of such remarks about a man who has survived an assassination attempt is the fact that the First Amendment, according to Supreme Court precedents, does not protect expression that, with no mitigating public good, endangers life or property. Your right to speak out does not include yelling "Fire!" in a crowded theater when there is no fire.

Royko's suggestion that a publisher like Larry Flynt–whose magazines Royko does not like personally–should be dealt with in violent, even fatal methods shoots holes in First Amendment protection for all the media, holes indistinguishable from rectal gapers like Mike Royko.

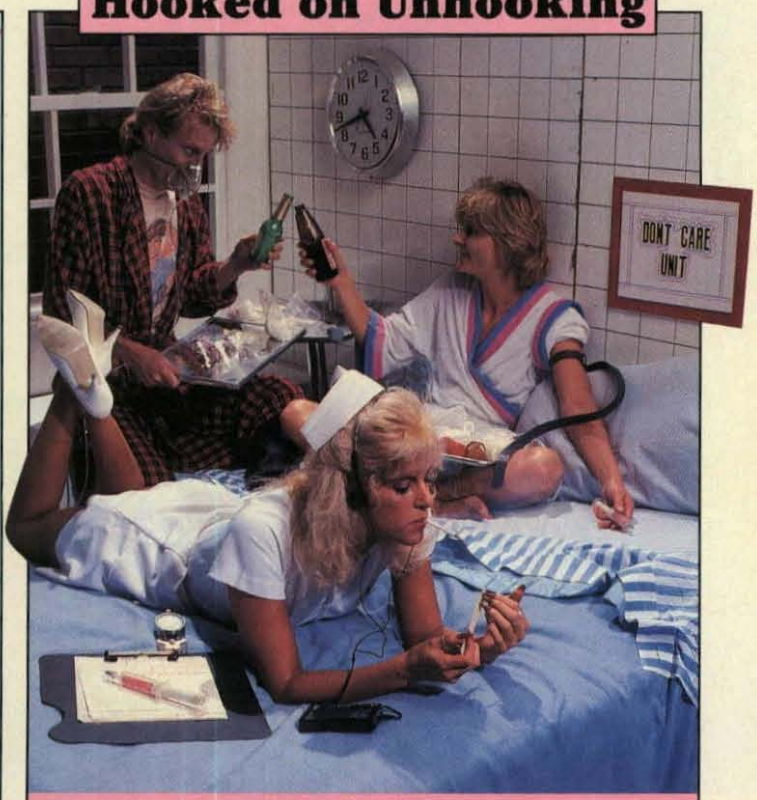

Bush Pilot

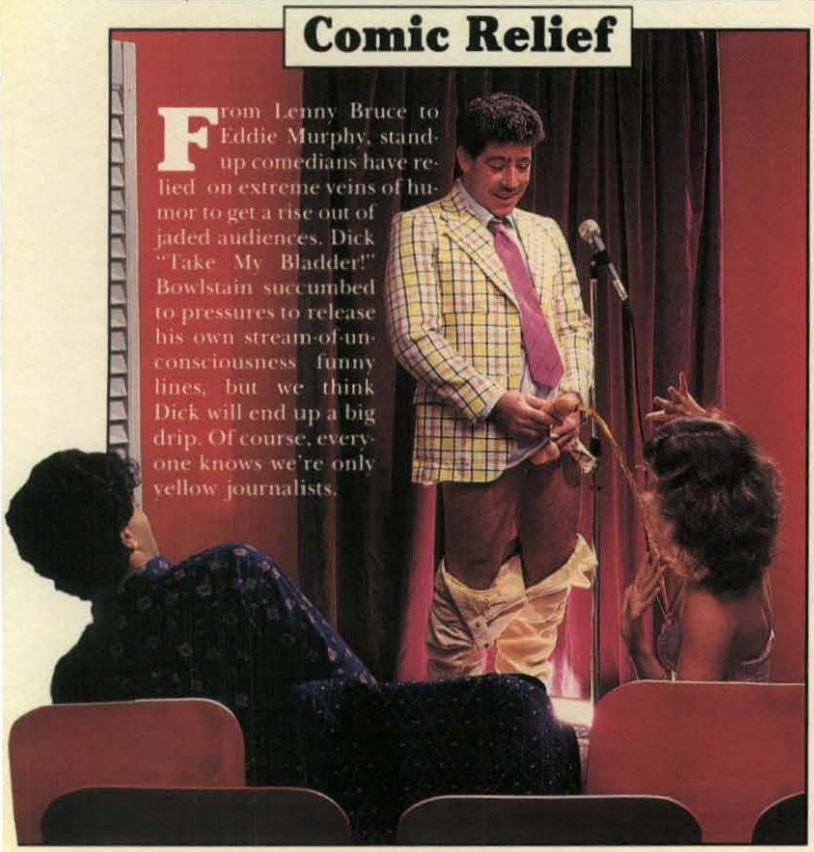

Coming in for a one-point landing, it's the infamous kamikaze muff-diver. With his head in the clouds and his tongue on the ground, he's a gland-handling, one-man pussy patrol, unafraid to follow his nose into uncharted territory. That's what the pioneer spirit is all about.

Hooked on Unhooking

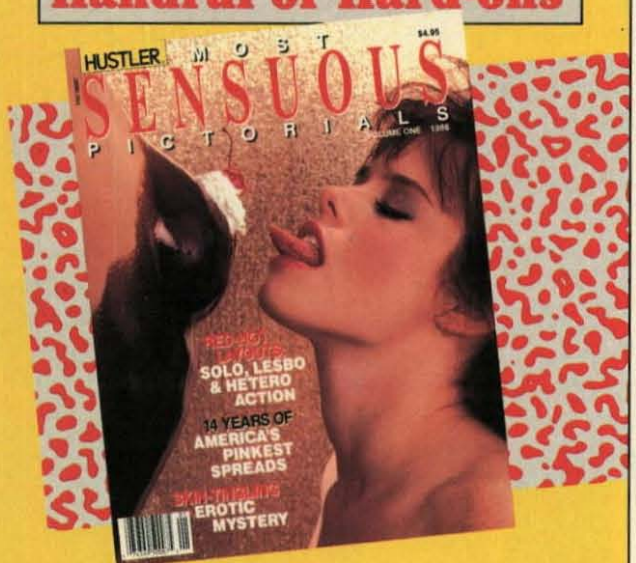

There are just so many alcohol and drug abuse clinics a guy can go through before he ODs on therapy. Once a former addict has cured himself into a state of complete mental, emotional and physical dependency, where can he turn to get away from all those substance abuse programs? To the friendly folks at the Don't Care Units, of course. Here the staff (all specially recruited from civil service rejects) will gladly look the other way, as long as the price is right. Don't Care Units offer more than a mere cure; they're the final solution.

Comic Relief

From Lenny Bruce to Eddie Murphy, stand-up comedians have relied on extreme veins of humor to get a rise out of jaded audiences. Dick "Take My Bladder!" Bowlstain succumbed to pressures to release his own stream-of-unconsciousness funny lines, but we think Dick will end up a big drip. Of course, everyone knows we're only yellow journalists.

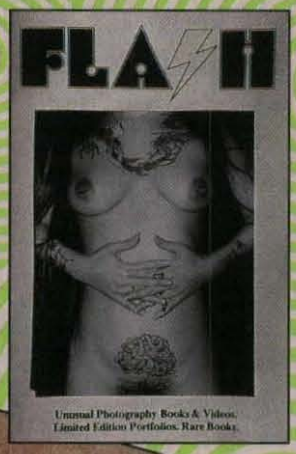

Handful of Hard-ons

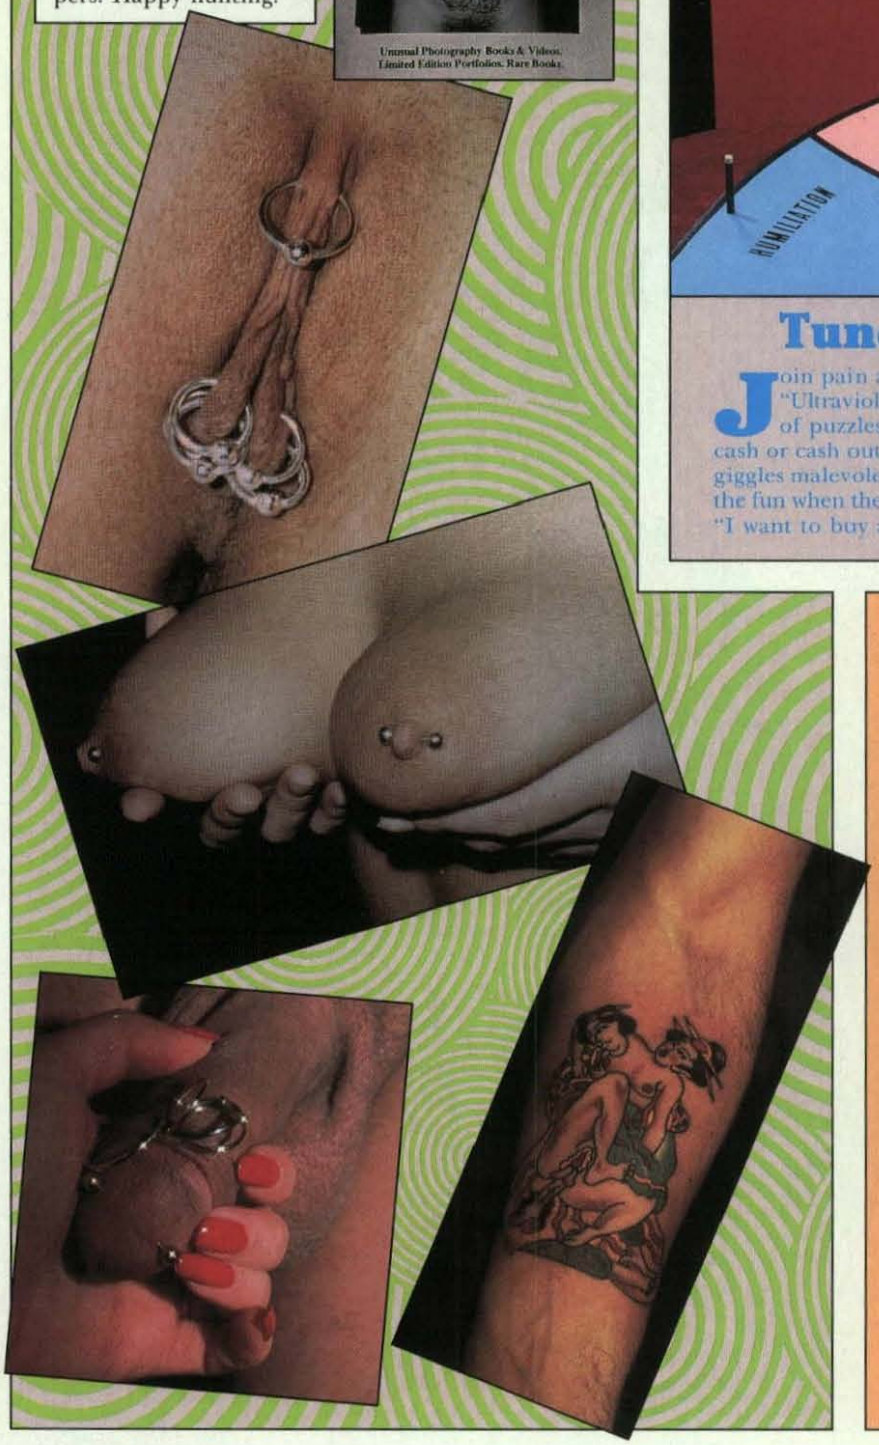

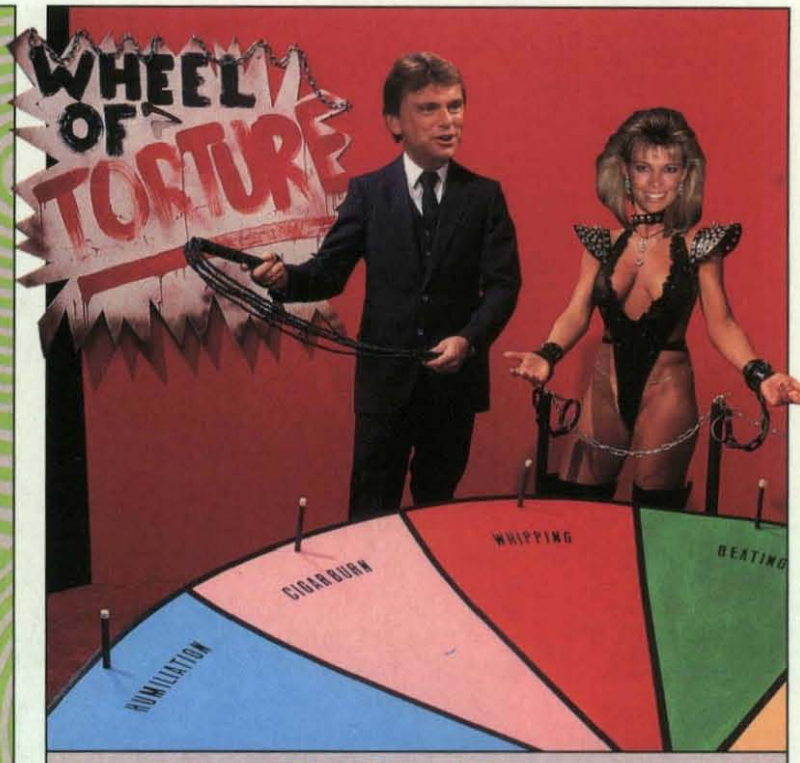

In 14 years, HUSTLER has made its name with hard-hitting journalism, gut-busting humor, outrageous commentary . . . and sexy, sexy ladies. HUSTLER MOST SENSUOUS PICTORIALS captures a decade and a half of America's pinkest spreads. Filled with red-hot solo, lesbo and hetero action, it's on sale at your favorite newsstand, or send $4.95 (plus $1 postage and handling) to Subscriptions Department, HUSTLER, 9171 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 300, Beverly Hills, CA 90210.

Hot Flash

These choice images were culled from the "unusual" photography, books, videos and other strange erotica available from Flash Productions (Box 745, Woodstock, NY 12498). Their catalog costs a buck, but that's bound to be a bargain for any fetishist worth his rubber diapers. Happy hunting!

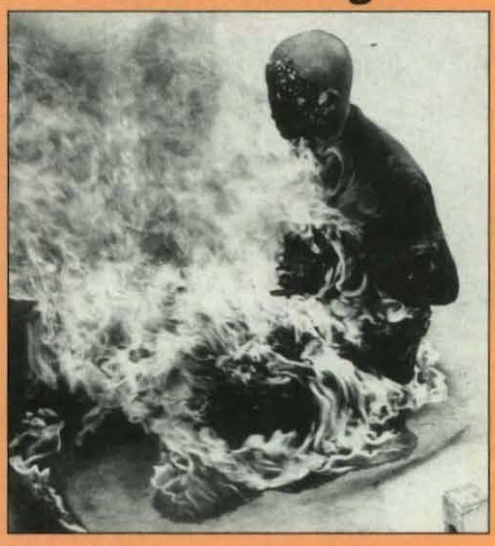

Tune in for Torment

Join pain administrator Pat Sajak and his lovely assistant "Ultraviolent" Vanna White every weekday for a half hour of puzzles, prizes and punishment. Contestants rack up cash or cash out on the rack, while Vanna turns the letters and giggles malevolently on Wheel of Torture. You won't want to miss the fun when the next lucky winner turns to the host and screams, "I want to buy a bowel, Pat!"

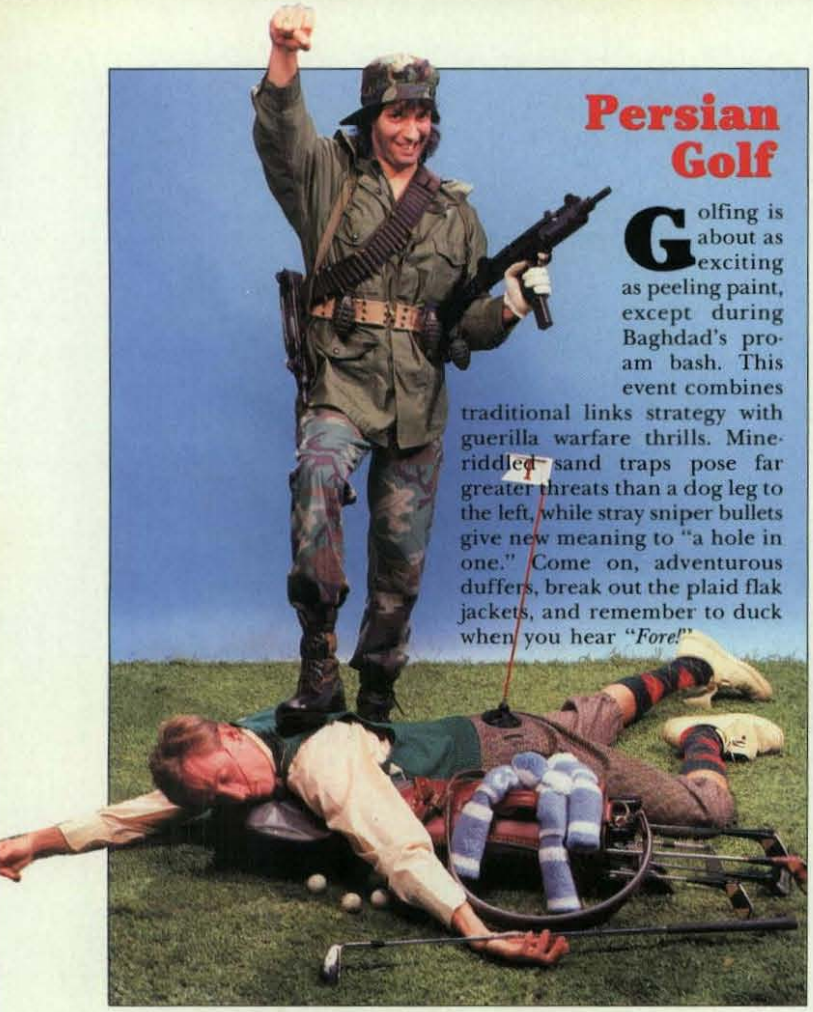

PARODY: Not to be taken seriously. Celebrity heads stripped in on our models' bodies.

Great Moments With George

In an attempt to shed his wimpy image, the Vice President shaves his head and sets fire to himself at an Iowa press conference. Although the incident is later attributed to an overdose of vitamins, the epithet "burning Bush" sticks.

PARODY: Not to be taken seriously. Our comments added to newsphoto.

Persian Golf

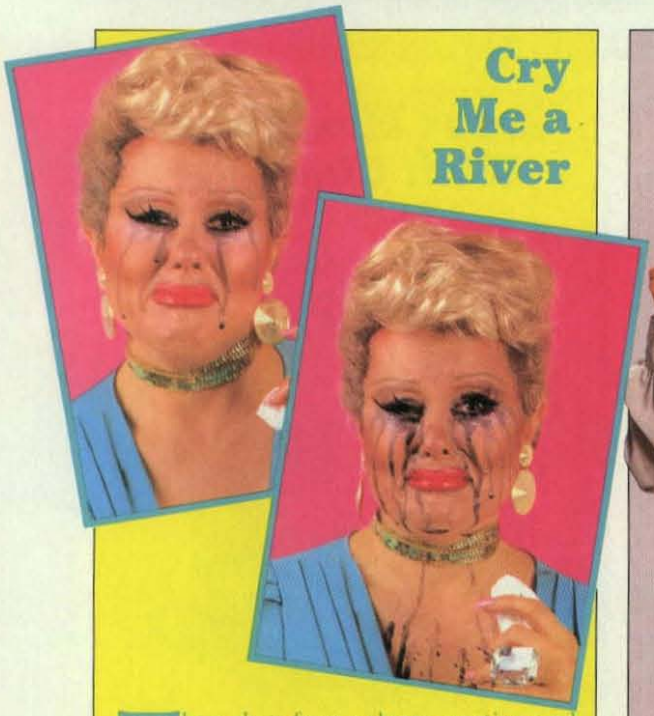

Golfing is about as exciting as peeling paint, except during Baghdad's pro-am bash. This event combines traditional links strategy with guerilla warfare thrills. Mine-riddled sand traps pose far greater threats than a dog leg to the left, while stray sniper bullets give new meaning to "a hole in one." Come on, adventurous duffers, break out the plaid flak jackets, and remember to duck when you hear "Fore!"

Bed Spread

If you've been fucking for ages on the same old sheets, chances are, you've grown pretty blasé–after all, even black satin gets boring after a while. That's why you should check out the latest erotic sensation: bed spreads, in a variety of flavors and textures. Whether it's thick, creamy chocolate for mud-wrestling fans, or chunky peanut butter for the masochistic types, you can be sure there's a spread that will match your mood, and won't stick to the roof of your mouth.

Cry Me a River

These shots from a cheery greeting card copyrighted by West Graphics of San Francisco are photographer Mala's way of cashing in on the flood of items pouring out in response to Tammy Faye's downfall. Incredible lookalike Janice Sukiatis has nothing to boo-hoo about, since she should clean up as long as her more famous "twin" stays in the limelight of the lowlife.

The Hole Enchilada

Even the plainest Jane in the secretarial pool can become a Spanish spitfire with the aid of Oil of Olé. Its special combination of spicy ingredients will leave your lovers begging for mercy and water, because no man can resist a Latin bombshell who smells like a sweaty taco. Ay caramba!

Monkey Business

Sensitive guys who complain that big apes get laid the most should consult Dr. Stephen Suomi of the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development. Suomi says that most researchers claim that two dominant male primates can be responsible for 80 to 90% of copulations, but the doctor reports that paternity-detecting blood tests among rhesus monkeys reveal that the weak, submissive beasts are doing most of the fathering. According to the scientist, most of the sensitive monkeys perform their fun on the sly so as not to anger the bigger apes that are busy chest-thumping elsewhere. Suomi cites one of the wimpy monkeys, Sleepy, as responsible for 35% of the births in the researcher's test group. "Females seek him out. He's nice, and he likes to play with the babies." Sure, Doc, but who named him Sleepy?

Don't Eat Yellow Grass

Impulsive outdoor lovers who do it in the wilds may have resorted to safe-sex practices by using condoms, but they're still endangering others. At least that's the claim of British farmers and veterinarians who are terrified at the thought of cattle and other gentle critters getting a mouthful of tainted scum. To alert open-air fornicators of this problem, the vets have asked condom manufacturers to print a message on the package to remind the user to dispose of them properly. Unfortunately, the rubber men say there's no room for the fine print. For now, the livestock are just going to have to remember to dine at the feedbag, not the scumbag.

Big Girls Don't Cry

A California school district has ruled in favor of a busty high-school student who was told her breasts were too big for the cheerleading squad. Vicki Ann Guest says that after her Huntington Beach school told her the only things they wanted shaking were the pom poms, she was so devastated that she filed a $1 million lawsuit. The startled school board passed a ruling forbidding the discrimination of potential cheerleaders as a result of the size of their breasts. "I'm happy today that I can finally feel normal about myself again," revealed the well-endowed teen after fighting the good fight. "Hopefully, this will not happen to any other student." Now, that's something all football fans can cheer about.

Perv Busters Busted

It was bound to happen sooner or later. An antipornography group in Canada known as the Alberta Coalition Against Pornography was raided by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who confiscated 42 slides of pornographic material that the antismut committee was observing. It seems that the high-minded crusaders were busted themselves for showing X-rated shots to interested activists who were a bit too interested. Though criminal charges have yet to be filed, Janet Lavoie of the coalition said the group is "infuriated." It seems some people just gotta have it.

EROTIC ENTERTAINMENT

With more than a thousand hard-core movies being released each year for the home audience, viewers, increasingly confronted by seductive advertising and slick packaging, are often at a loss when it comes to selecting an X-rated tape worth watching. HUSTLER is committed to serious, no-bullshit criticism designed to accurately inform readers of XXX-cinema offerings, and to spur the adult-entertainment industry to better productions. Despite their drastic decline, there will always be adult theaters, and we'd never leave a film buff in the lurch: If a review says a production was shot on film, it's probably playing on a big screen somewhere–all you have to do is find it.

HARD ROCKIN' BABES

Shot on Video.

Three-Quarters Erect. Directed by Bruce Seven; starring Erica Boyer, Sharon Mitchell, Sharon Kane, Blondi B., Stephanie Rage and Porsche Lynn. Videocassette by Vidco 2000.

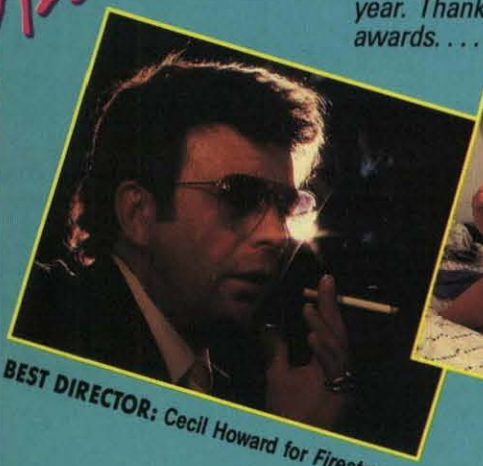

Pity the pud-pullin' putz so emotionally involved with a particular smut siren that he cannot bear to see his jewel of a jezebel bejizzed. Director Bruce Seven has come to the rescue of this deeply feeling fool, with a full-length fish-only feature that raises the query: Are males really necessary? Apparently not to Blondi B., who, sans Tony Montana, blossoms into an assertive participant in dyke debauchery, playing back with interest after Sharon Mitchell tongues her B. hole. Nor do any of *Hard Rockin'*s other dickless wonders, all of whom conveniently carry dildos, probers and butt beads, suffer from a shortage of opposite-sex members. Porsche Lynn gets what looks like four fingers up Sharon Kane's creamy crevice, then sticks double digits up her own dumper while getting finger-fucked from the rear. Loner without a boner Stephanie Rage pops anal beads from her sphincter ring while donging her own slot. The closing six-way hot-oil gash-mash redefines tuna melt, and the only wad will be your own. –Christian Shapiro

YOUNG AND INNOCENT

Shot on Video.

Half Erect. Directed by Hal Freeman; starring Barbii Dol, Sheena Horne, Fallon, Tiffany Storm, Havanah, Ron Jeremy, Randy West, Chet Aznivor and Randy Paul. Videocassette by Hollywood Video.

Better keep an umbrella by the VCR when you insert this tape–Fallon, the soon-to-be-infamous geyser gash, is in the cast (billed as Laurie Peacock), and Grafenburg groupies will be pleased to hear that she lets loose with two separate bursts of beaver juice. But Miss Niagara nookie isn't the only treat in this well-lensed sexer from carnal craftsman Hal Freeman. Sheena Horne gives a couple of high-energy performances, a rarity with this beautiful, but often subdued, slit. Her gash gobble with Fallon finds Sheena soaked to the tits in splashing pussy potion and her own sweat. Randy Paul throws so-so bonings at Tiffany Storm and Barbii Dol, and Ms. Dol closes the tape with a mediocre meating with Chet Aznivor. Producer/director Freeman skimps somewhat on the plot and eroticism here, but the overall quality throughout is high. It won't melt your machine, but Young and Innocent packs enough sexcitement to harden even old and jaded fuck flick fans. –Rob Peters

GRAND PRIXXX

Shot on Video.

Fully Erect. Directed by F.J. Lincoln; starring John Leslie, Sharon Mitchell, Porsche Lynn, Christophe Clark, Marilyn Jess, Robert Malone, Lisa Bella, Rocky Stiffreddy, Dani Herbelin, Jeanna Fine and Joey Silvera. Videocassette by Caballero Home Video.

A rare surprise among fuckvids, Grand Prixxx manages to put together a good story, excellent acting and some bone-bulging cunt-creasing. This one has it all. John Leslie as a famous race car driver, Porsche Lynn as a reporter and Sharon Mitchell as Leslie's adopted daughter actually make for believable characters who speak somewhat intelligent dialogue. Which is not to say the heat of the meat has been skimped on, as proved in the opening corker in which Lisa Bella takes a double-dong sandwich from Christophe Clark and Robert Malone. Mitchell delivers her customary creamy coozing in a hot labia lapping with the gorgeous Marilyn Jess and a semen-soaked snatch-slam with Rocky Stiffreddy. (The latter scene ends on what appears to be a spontaneous note, with Mitchell looking quite pissed after Rocky slaps her face hard with his spent tool.) As for Leslie, his poon poke with Jess is a definite salacious slobber-fest, as he rams the French goddess into a Gallic frenzy. Porsche Lynn makes her one fuck scene sizzle in her own dirty, delightful style. Most of the cast speaks no English, or very bad English, but the way everybody humps, it doesn't matter. Grand Prixxx proves to be a champion racer in all departments–it's the winner's circle for this hot-rodder. –Sam Lowry

GIRLS WITH CURVES

Shot on Film.

One-Quarter Erect. Directed by Bruce Johns; starring Dominique Saint Clair, Sarde Renaud, Jennifer, John Lourdes, Eve Jarre, Alan Oliver, Jean Pierre Armand and Shirley. Videocassette by Cal Vista.

Now that France is a crumbled, former civilization, America is being deluged with relics of that country's glory days, a time when the French created some of the most breathtakingly exquisite depictions of sensual beauty known to man. Of course, we're also getting grade D, E and F fuck films that have been wallowing in the can over there for the past decade. Such is the case with Girls With Curves: Though featuring plenty of drilling and spilling, Curves misses the mark. Artistically placed shadows consistently obscure any signs of pussy penetration, a discretion sure to be resented by the gynecologically inclined, most of whom will already be miffed by the brevity of most boffings in this rambling yarn of a virgin slut's peregrinations. The precredit sequence opens with a garlic-eating goon wanking wad into a cup of coffee. The camera cuts away. Then he stirs in the supposed nondairy creamer, and his wench slurps up her putative cafe au jizz. After that, Girls With Curves goes straight to sleep. –C. S.

WET SHOTS: THE BEST OF BUNNY BLEU VOLUME 1

Shot on Video.

Half Erect. Starring Bunny Bleu, Kristara Barrington, Summer Rose, Helga, Randy West, Marc Wallice, Greg Rome and Scott Irish. Videocassette by Wet Video.

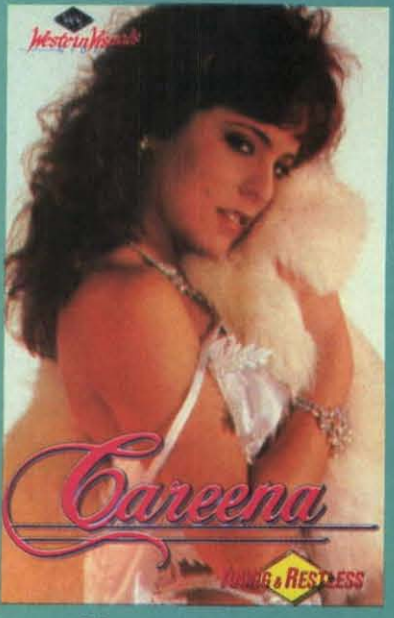

The Wet Shots series has given grateful gonad-grippers quality goop-inducers from such glorious holes as Annette Haven and Vanessa Del Rio, all-slime great labial legends. But now Bunny Bleu? Bleu is not remembered as a headlining orifice, being relegated primarily to supporting screws, her small, unexceptional tits, saurian lips and pesky kid-sister screen presence warranting extremely few lead roles. What Bleu lacked in classical cooze appeal or technical aptitude, she made up for in gameness, an endearing quality of plucky endurance evident as she opens the tape undergoing a steady rod barrage from Greg Rome and concludes the proceedings perched on Marc Wallice's hooked harpoon. Four fornications are sandwiched between these crusty ends–that's two BJs, a cunt munch, and a prick shared with Summer Rose. There are memories of Bunny Bleu better than what this package calls up, but Best of Volume 1 is a fully adequate masturbatory aid. Still, there's probably no need for Volume 2. –Kurt Blume

CAREENA: YOUNG AND RESTLESS

Shot on Video.

Three-Quarters Erect. Directed by Jerome Tanner; starring Careena Collins, Jamie Summers, Tom Byron, Candi Evans, John Leslie, Krista Lane, Paul Thomas, Jerry Butler, Danielle, Joey Silvera, Sharon Mitchell, Randy Paul and Ron Jeremy. Videocassette by Western Visuals.

Lubricious and delicious Careena Collins is the subject of Tanner's latest salacious compilation repackage. Thank you, Jerome. Tight, tiny-tit tart Collins smiling as a slimy John Leslie facial oozes down the side of her little-girl mug starts the balls rolling; with that cum-caked cherubic countenance fresh in the mind's eye, Randy Paul screws her little-girl puss through her little-girl buns. Careena is launched upon a course of penile ingurgitation, the starlet hyperventilating, her eyes bugging, her moans giving way to ululations as she's fucked, sucked and scum-spritzed. Collins, in her ruttish career, was at her best with men, women and groups. Ample examples of each are given here. The secret of Careena's success is that everyone who worked with her was steaming hot to pork her, an attitude any porn viewer will readily identify with. Aside from an egregious theme song, some dumb cunt doing documentary narration and a surplus of male acting toward the end, this anthology is faultless. Careena is the stuff that makes a tired, old prick young and restless. *–C. IN CHARM'S WAY

Shot on Video.

One-Quarter Erect. Directed by Bill Blackman; starring Nikki Charm, Frankie Leigh, Sharon Mitchell, Barbii Dol, Johny Angel, Sasha Gabor, Ron Jeremy and Buddy Love. Videocassette by Intropics.

Producer Mark Curtis isn't fooling anyone by packing his latest schlock vid under the Intropics label–instead of his own company, Video Exclusives–as this is more of the same by-the-numbers, low-rent raunch that's giving sleaze a bad name. If you squint past the horrible video quality, you'll see six scenes of low to middlin' intensity. Frankie Leigh and Johny Angel go first, and it's the best coupling of the tape, enlivened for several moments when Senor Angel really fucks Frankie's fetching face. Nikki Charm, the petite peter-pleaser, joins Sharon Mitchell and Buddy Love for a while and exhibits a glimpse of her charm by sucking Love's nuts while he bones Mitchell. Barbii Dol, looking like a younger Bunny Bleu, is in half the scenes, and lends her bod to Angel, Sasha Gabor and Ron Jeremy. She's got some potential, but it's barely revealed in these lukewarm settings. If you want to be aroused and entertained, don't get In Charm's Way.

INTRODUCING BARBII

Shot on Video.

Half Erect. Directed by Dick Shepherd; starring Barbii Dol, Candy Cruze, Tracey Adams, Le Dawn, Troy Tannier, Scott Irish, Frank James and Peter North. Videocassette by Cinderella Home Video.

Baby-doll Barbii is being touted as the new Traci Lords, and we meet her immediately in Introducing Barbii, which commences with her squirming strawberry-blond patch. The camera travels up to her little-girl, jailbait face as she perches, shedding her clothes, on the lap of pretty-bone Troy Tannier. A shy girl, Barbii buries her face in Troy's crotch, a move that confirms her role as center of attention. Tannier slides and rides Barbii from all sides; by the time she jerks and sucks his froth onto her tits, she's a seasoned vet. Barbii exhibits her erotic expertise and puckered-pastrami puss twice more in Introducing, lez-befriending Tracey Adams and trio-tripping with Peter North and Candy Cruze. Crotch cannons are also crammed into the cooze canyons of Adams, Cruze (who could be Gail Force's older sister, and is surely at least a distant cousin) and big mama Le Dawn. The gland-to-gland combat is all well-focused and sufficiently lit to show that it is, without exception, regulation, by-the-rules rote-rooting. Is Barbii the new Traci Lords? Who cares? Having just met the lady, this is hopefully only the first encounter in a long and meaningless relationship. –K. B.

CREAMY CHEEKS

Shot on Video.

Half Erect. Directed by Bill Blackman; starring Blondi B., Sunny Daye, Jasmine, Stephanie Rage, Jessica Wilde, Blake Palmer, Sasha Gabor, Frank James and Tony Montana. Videocassette by Video Exclusives.

Creamy Cheeks suffers from the usual Video Exclusives problems: crappy video and sound quality, witless performances and zero production value. Cheeks would be just another shitty video if it didn't include an increasingly rare emphasis on rectal raunch–the shit chute is this tape's saving grace. Aided by a can of whipped cream, Blake Palmer uses the combination dessert topping/rectal lube to snatch the shitter-bang-cheerful Sunny Daye. "Hot Oriental cookie" Jasmine gets her Far Eastern fudge packed by sappy Sasha Gabor after the Burt Reynolds lookalike sticks his tongue way up her bunger. Other anal highlights include Ms. Daye introducing beads into whiny Jessica Wilde's anus, Stephanie Rage ass-fucking Wilde with a wee wiener-shaped water pistol and Tony Montana deep-tonguing the pretty pink pooper of his ex-girlfriend, Blondi. No, Blondi doesn't do anal, and no, Jessica Wilde doesn't take a dick in her dirt either–although after all her bitching and moaning about those itty bitty anal beads, you wish Mr. Palmer would ram the unwilling Wilde wench hard in the heinie. Creamy Cheeks is a semi-shitty video saved somewhat by sphincter schtupping. –R. P.

PORSCHE LYNN

Though she's named for a German sports car and does much of her work in Europe, trouser-tightening temptress Porsche Lynn is your classic, all-American, corn-fed Midwestern beauty queen. Anyone who's ever fantasized about fucking an eager, athletic Kansas City cheerleader will never forget their first sight of Porsche, seen here starring, appropriately enough, as The Girl With the Million Dollar Legs. She made her memorable debut in I Wanna Be a Bad Girl, turned in one of her peak performances in Taboo V and is a must-see in recent features such as Barbara Dare's Roman Holiday and this issue's Video of the Month, Grand Prixxx.

SLUMBER PARTY REUNION

Shot on Video.

Three-Quarters Erect. Directed by Michael Evans; starring Fallon, Rachel Ashley, Tanya Foxx, Tasha Voux, Rugby Rhodes, Eric Dylan, Johnny Nineteen, Lee Baldwin and Stephanie Rage. Videocassette by Eruption Video.

When a quartet of quim convenes for a Slumber Party Reunion, the first order of business is to gab, chatter, prattle, giggle and jabber. The fuckholes of Party Reunion spew profusions of naturalistic girl squawk, reminding us that porn is necessary precisely because women do talk like this. Often it is worth fucking some face hole for no other reason than to shut it up. The pricks and clits of Reunion succeed admirably in converting conversation to carnal satiation, with a high count of flashback encounters and a closing present-time flesh-mess orgy. Wad is in the air, splashing everywhere, but the most spectacular spumings spring from the snatch of Fallon. This brunet sag-tit with silver-dollar-pancake nipples thrice thumb-strums her cum slot, triggering a shuddering, convulsive climax culminating in bursts of what looks like pale chicken broth spurting from her geyser spout. If this is faked, it's faked good. There's insufficient space here to list all the benefits of a woman who can fake good; suffice it to say that Slumber Party Reunion will keep you up for at least part of the night. –K.B.

BRINGING UP BRAT

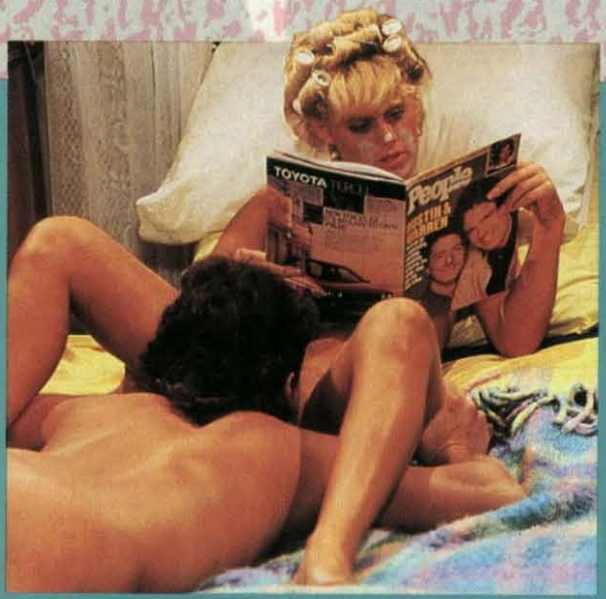

Shot on Video.

One-Quarter Erect. Directed by Paul Thomas; starring Jamie Summers, Mona Summers, Gail Force, Kim Alexis, Tom Byron, Scott Irish and Nikki Knights. Videocassette by Vivid Video.

As in predeccessors Brat on the Run and Army Brat, Bringing up Brat opens with a joke fuck of uninvolved, nail-polishing Jamie Summers by attention-starved hubby Tom Byron. This routine, like the recycled theme song, probably amused a few people the first time around, a few less than that the second time, and Paul Thomas (director/singer/songwriter) the third. Those less intimately involved with the Brat trilogy will be pleased by Byron's dirty-talking ass worship and pronging of pelvis-pitching Nikki Knights, later conjoined by dusky, busty Kim Alexis. Scott Irish's picnic-tabletop ram from the rear of Summers, and Jamie being Gail Force-fed will also give pleasure to the impartial observer. But can an objective viewer benefit from a non-verified final cum-shot, an unstuffed Gail Force and heart-to-heart talks between Jamie and her real-life mother? This footage may be good for something, but not for bringing up splat. –C.S.

SHOOTING FOR THE STARS
A Doctor's Guide to Better Orgasm
by Herbert Otto, Ph.D.
Illustration by Nora Koerber

SHOOTING FOR THE STARS

"My wife came a little harder if I slid a finger around her anus just as her contractions were beginning."

Something about human nature drives us to improve everything in our lives, even the things that are already very enjoyable. No matter how good it gets, we want better. Even something as intensely rewarding as orgasm is open to improvement. We'll start with 17 tried-and-true techniques.

Certain ways may not work well for one person, but will yield superb results for another. Orgasm intensification is so individualized that partners usually have to take turns trying out different ways to obtain intensified climax. Completely open communication between partners is essential. Both partners should be aware that they're beginning an adventure that can increase sexual ecstasy, improve sensitivity and deepen intimacy.

Contrary to the traditional belief system, the human orgasm can be influenced and improved in a variety of ways. An article by Sholty, Ephros, et al., published in the Archives of Sexual Behavior, contains a table titled "Conscious Actions to Facilitate Own Orgasm." With modifications, this table provides an excellent base of action. Facilitate, as used in this sense, means to maximize pleasure in order to obtain a climax. In orgasm intensification, the aim is to maximize the pleasure of the climax itself. To select from the facilitation and intensification menu, a couple can read the various suggestions together. Each partner can then mark those items that past experience, intuition and current feelings indicate are most likely to yield the best results.

The Fundamental Seven

1. Getting Into the "Right" Position: The "right" position is the one that yields maximum pleasure and/or enhances orgasm, though the right position for the woman may not be the right position for the man, and vice versa.

One couple borrowed a book on sexual positions and spent several weeks trying them out. A "sideways" position considerably intensified the woman's climactic experience. The man was less fortunate, and didn't find a position to heighten his climax. However, both greatly enjoyed the exploration of the many and various positions.

2. Obtaining Optimum Stimulation: Sometimes finding the right position for intercourse provides maximum stimulation. More often, maximum stimulation requires a variety of stroking, pinching and biting prior to, during and sometimes through completion of the orgasm.

One husband discovered that these erotic incentives are just as effective on the male as on the female. "My wife came a little harder if I slid a finger around her anus just as her contractions were beginning. But that was nothing compared to the way she heaved when I put a vibrator into play. The fireworks were so intense, I didn't realize I hadn't come."

"But I did," chimes in his brunet mate. "I figured, What's good for the gander If I'd consciously set out to give him a blowjob while I buzzed a fake dick on his balls, he would have said, 'No way! That's too kinky.' But I know for a fact that he's glad we got around to it."

3. Getting Optimum Rhythm and Speed: Due to cultural conditioning, in many instances, the man still appears to be in charge of rhythm and speed during intercourse. This is changing. Some couples report excellent results from taking turns trying to obtain the optimum rhythm and speed during coitus.

"One of my greatest joys is to find a guy who'll let me set the pace and rhythm," says one woman. "When it comes to the horizontal mambo, I can toss, shake and dip a man into a state of erotic grace–if he'll just let me."

4. Fantasizing and Visualizing: Sexological studies establish that sexual fantasies during intercourse assist in achieving sexual arousal. In a June '78 interview, a Yale University psychology professor observed: "In a study we carried out on 150 suburban housewives, we found that 65% fantasized during sexual relations."

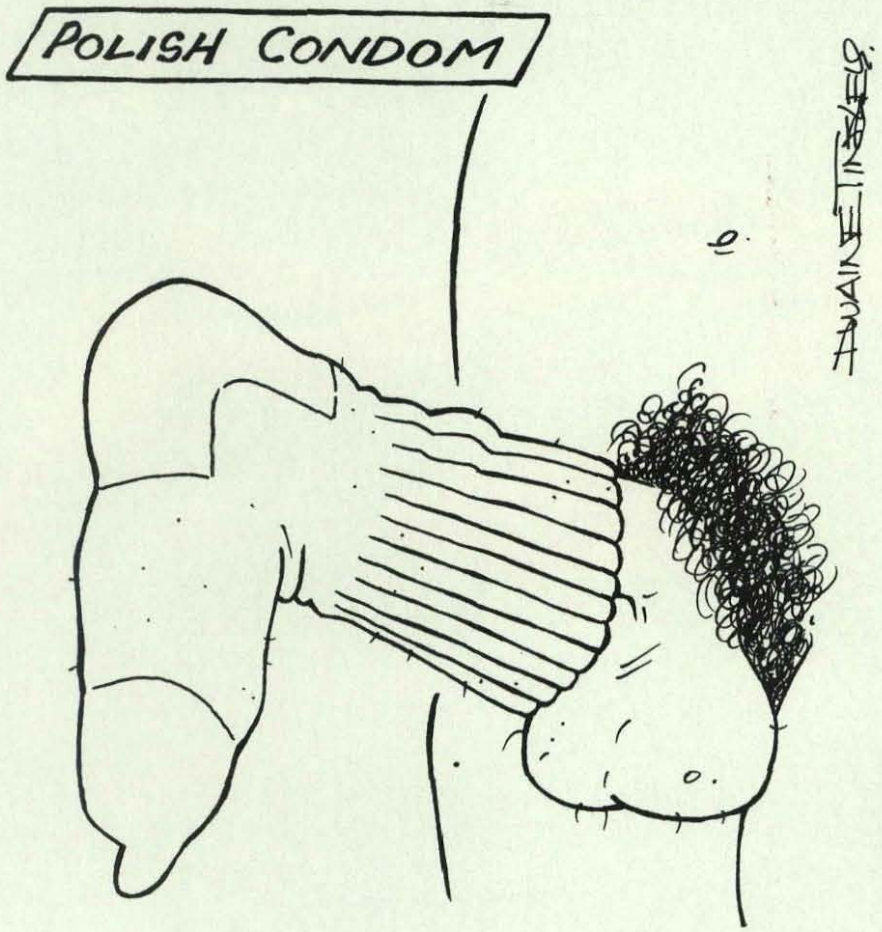

According to "Sexual Fantasies and Sexual Satisfaction: An Empirical Analysis of Erotic Thought," a hallmark research project published in 1986 involving more than 200 married women, the eight most-preferred fantasies are:

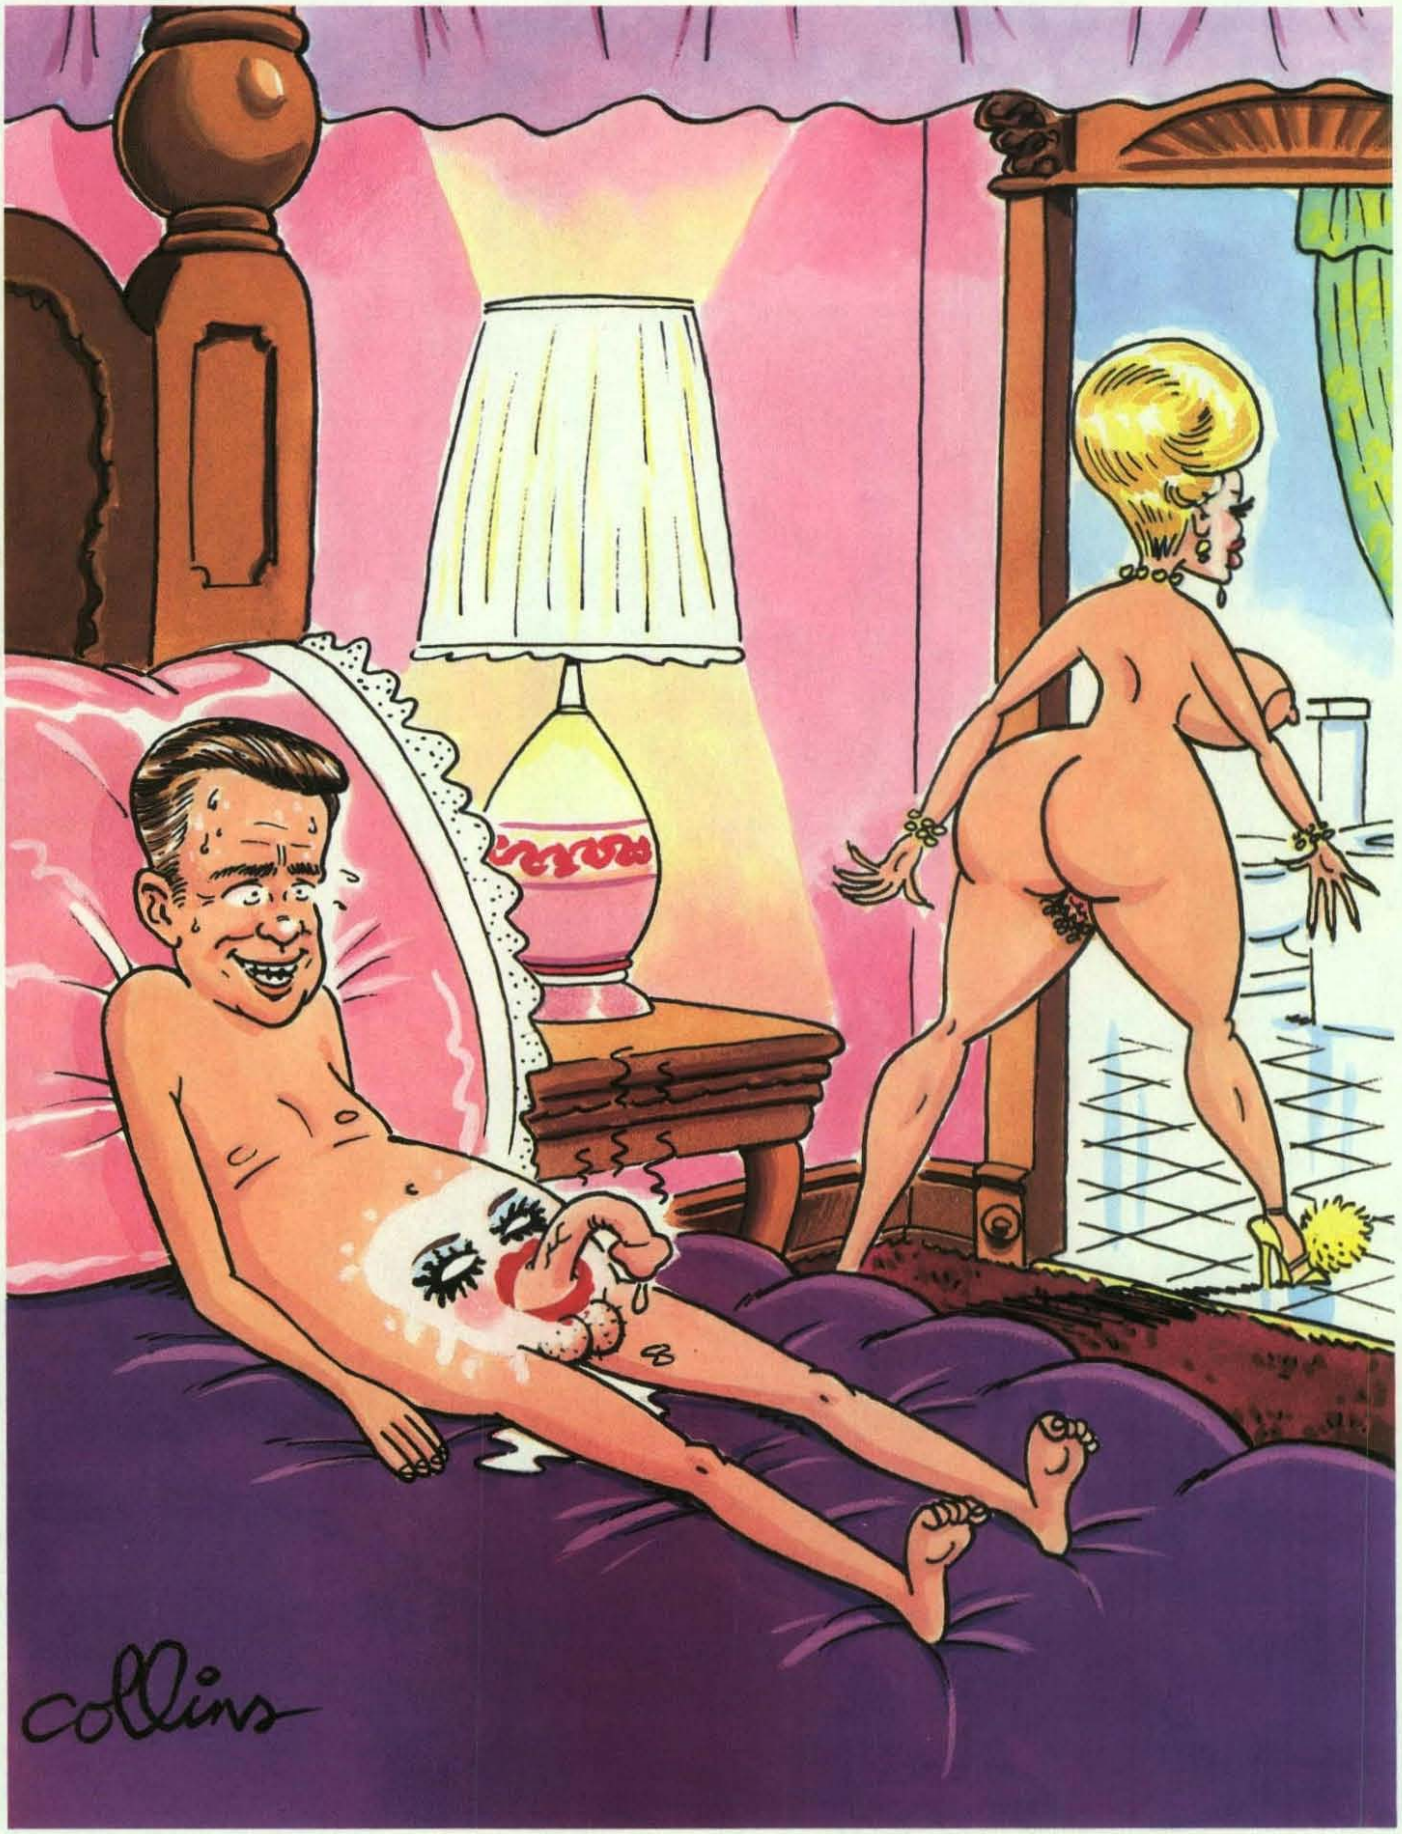

1) Reliving a sexual experience (not first)
2) Extramarital affair
3) Current sex partner
4) New sex partner
5) More affectionate partner
6) Different positions for coitus
7) Reliving first sexual experience
8) Overpowered by acquaintance and forced to sexually surrender

Men and women report that the deliberate use of fantasies while engaged in the sex act intensifies orgasm.

5. Focusing on Feelings: One effective means of intensification is through focusing on feelings. The focus on feelings during intercourse can be in any one

KRYSTAL

Photography by James Baes

"I like sex to be intense," confides Krystal, "but I'm not looking for anything heavy, unless you're talking about my bed." Charismatic Krystal may like her relationships casual, but this black-lace beauty does so much hyperhumping that she had to trade in her flimsy headboard for wrought-iron sturdiness. "I like to work a man until he cries for mercy," giggles Krystal. "I've had so many men who would thrash around until the bed broke that I had to do something," she says with an evil grin. She now sees her new accessory as a challenge. "I'm expecting some company tonight," explains the saucy wench, "who I'm confident I can suck off until he bends something."

"One day I found Cindy, her hand deep in her cunt, my stroke books spread out all around her."

of three directions. In the most common, attention is directed exclusively to the primary site of stimulation or pleasure.

Another possibility, however, is to focus on the total response. A professional man reports: "As we move with each other, I sort of keep what is happening at the genital level like a minor note in a symphony. Mostly I tune in to the whole orchestra. The climax is terrific."

A third possible focus is on emotions. "When we have sex, I concentrate completely on my feelings and those of my partner. Everything else disappears until the unbelievably strong climax."

6. Vocalizing During the Love Act: Vocalizing in the U.S. bedroom during sex is on the increase. Most people find that any type of vocalizing during intercourse intensifies the experience.

"I yell and scream when I come–like an animal."

"When she starts making those noises, I go wild."

7. Staying at the Edge: Attuned lovers discover the last, and perhaps most effective, of the Fundamental Seven again and again. The objective is to get close to the point of orgasm but not go over the edge. Communication is vital to maintaining near-orgasmic arousal.

Useful techniques include stopping everything and pausing, slowing the stimulation, using a lighter touch and stimulating another, less-sensitive area.

Go to the edge of climax at least four times, pausing each time to let pleasure feelings subside. Finally, slowly build up the intensity until the orgasm explodes.

The 10 Major Ways of Orgasm Intensification

A. Conscious Tension Induction: Orgasm can be intensified by tensing parts of or the whole body at the onset of climax. Flexing the legs or pushing against the mattress with the buttocks brings excellent results.

Another way of creating internal tension is by having intercourse with a full bladder. "I woke up one morning with a blonde and a piss hard-on," says one orgasm pioneer. "She wanted the dick and didn't want to wait. I was a little leery, but when it came time to shoot, I thought I was going to pass right out."

B. Influencing the Desire Pattern: The desire to have intercourse ("being horny") varies widely with each person. Many people describe sexual desire as an "animal part" of themselves. They tend to control desire so that it is minimal, changing sexual feelings into irritation and discomfort. With progress toward healthier sexual attitudes, erotic desire is recognized as a normal indicator of sexual health. The best way to maintain sexual passion is to celebrate its advent. The key question to ask a person is: "What turns you on sexually?"

"I'd been living with my current girlfriend for about six months when things went stale," relates one man. "Then one day I found Cindy squatting on the floor, my stroke books spread out all around her, with her hand deep in her cunt. I was surprised, but not so surprised that I didn't notice my aching bone.

"Afterward I realized how little I knew about what would arouse this woman."

C. Changing the Arousal Pattern: All too often in couple relationships sexual arousal becomes established routine. As one wife wails: "I know every step when he starts out and the two variations in what he is going to do." Because arousal patterns are very pleasantly established, the tendency is to maintain them.

Similar to changing the desire pattern, arousal habits are best changed on the basis of an open discussion. "We totally changed our usual ways of beginning to make love and have been having honeymoon orgasms ever since."

D. Total Sensory Immersion: Emphasis is on finding a cornucopia of pleasurable inputs to cozen the senses. Total sensory immersion usually begins with one partner bathing the other, then giving a total body massage. Later, favorite appetizers plus preferred drinks and music are provided.

Everything is unhurried. Finally, a very slow and extended stimulation of all sensory and erotic zones postpones climax as long as possible. The result is, according to one couple, "a cosmic orgasm."

E. Innovative Celibacy: This is a period of celibacy, mutually agreed upon by a couple, with the aim of intensifying sexual experience. "They say absence makes the hard grow fonder," grins one woman. "It also soaks my soft spot." Some couples yield surprising outcomes using an approach called "halfway celibacy." They agree on a period of time during which every type of loveplay is okay except intercourse.

F. Environmental Change: A total change in environment works especially well with long-established couples. Getting away from familiar surroundings and responsibilities is transformative. Going to a motel or a beautiful spot in

Beach

Wherever Cha Cha goes, men have the sudden desire to pump it up. Just ask the burly lads on the beach who can't keep their eyes off this built blonde's incredibly developed pecs. Cha Cha keeps in top shape for her stint as a dancer at April's Cabaret in L.A.'s San Fernando Valley, but during her off-time she likes to pursue a little very-personal training by employing her stong-arm tactics to corral a willing beef-stud from the weight pen.

Starting with the clean-and-jerkoff, this buff babe takes her partner through rigorous curls and presses that have the young man gasping for breath. Cha Cha flexes her folds and demands more reps from her primed pupil, who eagerly complies by lifting the dancer's heavy mangos–up, down, up, down. Hours of grunts later, and the workout's completed. It's a lot of work, but as anyone in the audience at April's will tell you, no pain, no gain.

the country can have a major impact.

Minienvironmental change for intercourse can also produce outstanding results. A couple might stay home but make love on a rug, or table, or

G. The PC Muscle and Male Genital-Muscles Exercises: The genital musculature of the contemporary Western man and woman is, with rare exceptions, a person's land of neglect. The very same people who enthusiastically jog neglect the development of their genital musculature. Both sexes can reap extensive benefits by spending a fraction of time on genital musculature development.

Physician Arnold Kegel perfected a series of exercises in the late '40s and early '50s to treat women suffering from urinary stress incontinence. Kegel found that if women exercised the pubococcygeal (PC) muscle, which controls the flow of urine, they were able to control their occasional incontinence. Since the PC muscle forms the orgasmic platform and contracts during orgasm, women also noted an increase in sexual pleasure.

My own research involves seven to ten women who use PC muscle exercises. All claim an increase in the intensity of orgasms as a result of the exercises. It's best to begin PC exercises while urinating. Stop the flow for one second; then relax the muscle. Gradually work up to squeezing the muscle for three seconds, then relaxing it. Now use a dozen squeezes and releases three times a day.

Another major PC-strengthening method is the pushing exercise. Imagine a tampon is in the vagina and, as in a bowel movement, imagine pushing out the tampon. Hold the pushing for three seconds. Do this ten times a session, three times daily. This exercise can also be done inserting a dildo, fingers or penis. Many women have reported orgasms solely from PC muscle exercises.

Male genital muscles can be exercised in a similar manner: by stopping urine flow and contracting the anal sphincters. Another variation can be practiced during an erection. Simulate an ejaculation and move the penis back and forth. Suspend a towel or hat from the penis as the muscles gain strength.

The advantages of genital muscle exercises are twofold. First, the orgasm is intensified. Also, the partner profits. Vaginal contractions during intercourse are highly pleasurable stimuli for the man's penis. Women cream when the penis is contracted strongly inside the vagina.

H. The Use of Alcohol and Drugs for Orgasm Intensification: Several studies have reached similar findings about the use of alcohol vis-a-vis sex. In small amounts, alcohol seems to heighten desire. In moderate to large amounts, alcohol provokes desire, but diminishes sensory and performance abilities.

The orgasm impact of such drugs as amphetamines, LSD and cocaine varies greatly with the individual. Marijuana's effects on human sexuality have been more thoroughly researched. Ten research projects conducted in the '70s consistently found that the use of marijuana was associated with increased sexual enjoyment. Marijuana is a vaso-constrictor, something that constricts the blood vessels. Blood is drawn out toward the skin and extremities, and once the vessels are constricted, the blood doesn't readily flow out again. This means cocks stay harder longer and cunt lips maintain that aroused flush. Plus, tactile sensations are greatly enhanced.

Coupled with these physical effects are the mental bonuses. Many people experience a lowering of inhibitions on the weed. One pleasant phenomenon of the herb is its tendency to make an old lover appear brand-new.

I. The Water Jet Experience: The hot-tub spa, with its pulsating water jets (or the hand-held showerhead), is one of California's greatest contributions to the woman's orgasm. In the early '80s, I visited a companion who had an elaborate tiled spa. On some of my visits she'd emerge from the spa with that special rosy glow. Questioning revealed that she used a certain strategically placed jet to induce orgasm. "It's a different feeling, very intense–and I can have it any time."

J. Heightening Love and Caring: When especially affectionate and loving feelings are dominant in a relationship, an increase in orgasm intensity can be noted. One couple reported that on occasions when they're pleased with each other, they talk about their love before intercourse. The man says, "When we make out then, I feel our love. The climax is always the best ever."

Orgasm intensification has remained a neglected art because it requires sexual self-exploration and sexual self-understanding. The development of these capacities is still often avoided due to cultural antisexual pleasure conditioning. Orgasm intensification is a challenge, with a tangible reward–heightened sexual ecstasy.

I challenge you to find a spot on me that isn't tan," declares mouth-watering Mona. "Go ahead—take your time." This sexy sunworshipper's bone-building dare should keep you busy busting your britches for quite a while, since there's no quick way to examine her mountainous mounds of perfectly formed flesh. Lucky for you, this tantalizing tart is featured in the latest HUSTLER Honey video (see back cover for details), where a closer inspection of Mona's assets is insured. Like us, this caramel-color cooze sees no sense in hiding her deep, luscious bronzing. "When I feel those rays," she purrs, "I've got to peel it off. I want to be sure every inch is covered." Feel the heat? Envy the sun, fellas.

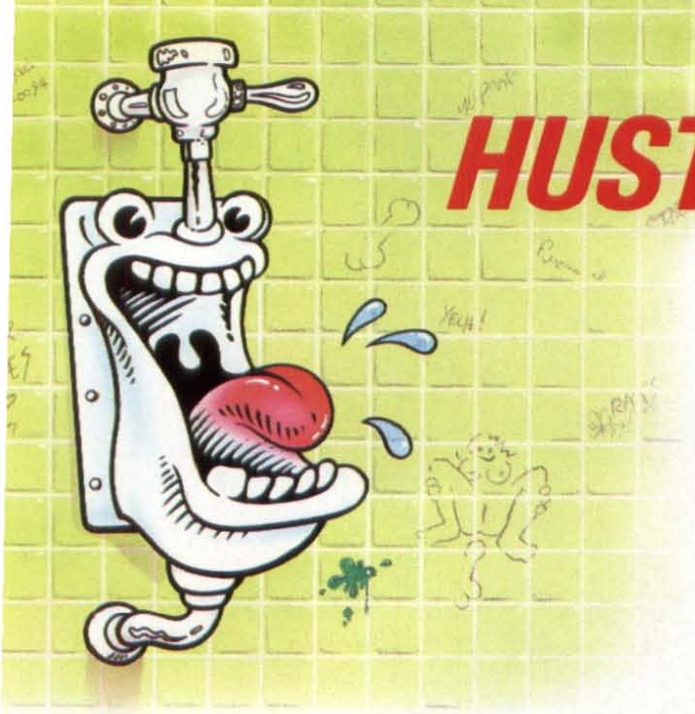

HUSTLER HUMOR

A man was sitting in a public library, collecting some facts on births and deaths of different races for a lecture he had to give.

"Good Lord!" he suddenly exclaimed to a stranger sitting nearby. "That's amazing!"

"What is?" asked the stranger.

"Do you know that every time I breathe, a man dies?"

"How interesting," replied the stranger. "Why don't you try using a different toothpaste?"

Two dykes were in the kitchen fixing dinner and drinking wine. The drinks soon got them into a romantic mood, and they ended up on the kitchen floor making love. After several violent climaxes, they leaned against the stove and relaxed.

"You're always so good, baby!" the first dyke cooed. "Did you like it when I fist-fucked you?"

"Oh, yeah, it was great," her lover replied, "but next time, will you do me a favor?"

"Anything, baby."

"Take off the oven mitt!"

One Sunday morning Reverend Harris said to his son Charlie, who was about seven years old, "Now, I want you to take the cow over to John's house. John will know what to do. Then you come on to church."

When Charlie arrived at church, Rev. Harris was right in the middle of his sermon. The text of the sermon was the life of John the Baptist, and the Reverend was on a roll. Every now and then he would ask the rhetorical question, "And what did John say?"

After hearing the same question, "And what did John say?" quite a few times, little Charlie could stand it no longer. He stood up in church and said, "John said that if you want that cow fucked, to fuck her yourself, because you didn't pay him the last time!"

Did you hear about the three kinds of black men? There are the mon-backs, the mo-tees and the do-das. The mon-backs work directing the garbage trucks into position, saying, "Mon-back, mon-back." The mo-tees are higher class, and in the restaurants they say, "Mo-tee, mo-tee." The do-das walk around and say, "Do-da check come today, or do-da check come tomorrow?"

A man wanted to get even with his wife for the way she acted at bedtime; so he went to a pet store. "Clerk, I need the biggest, meanest, nastiest gorilla you can find," said the man.

"Come with me. I have just what you're looking for," said the clerk. The clerk took the man in the back, and there in a cage was the biggest gorilla he had ever seen.

"I'll take him," the man said enthusiastically. He took the gorilla home and put it in the bedroom. His wife came home later on that day.

"What's that caged gorilla doing in our bedroom?" said the wife.

"Let me show you. Walk in front of the cage." So she did, and the gorilla started huffing and puffing. "Go put on your sexy negligee and sweet-smelling perfume like you wear to bed every night. Then walk in front of the cage," said the man.

She did so and then walked in front of the cage. The primate started huffing, puffing, grunting, snickering and just going ape-wild to get at her. The man opened the cage and threw his wife inside. "There," he yelled, "now you try and tell that son of a bitch you ain't in the mood!"

Question: Did you hear about the prominent Beverly Hills plastic surgeon who was making a fortune marketing souvenirs?
Answer: He's selling the scraps from Michael Jackson's nose job.

Ed and Larry, two clothing manufacturers, were sitting in their empty offices, complaining over the sudden drop in business. "I wish Gabriel would blow his horn," said Ed.

"Why?" asked Larry.

"All the dead people would come to life," explained Ed, "and they'd all need clothes!"

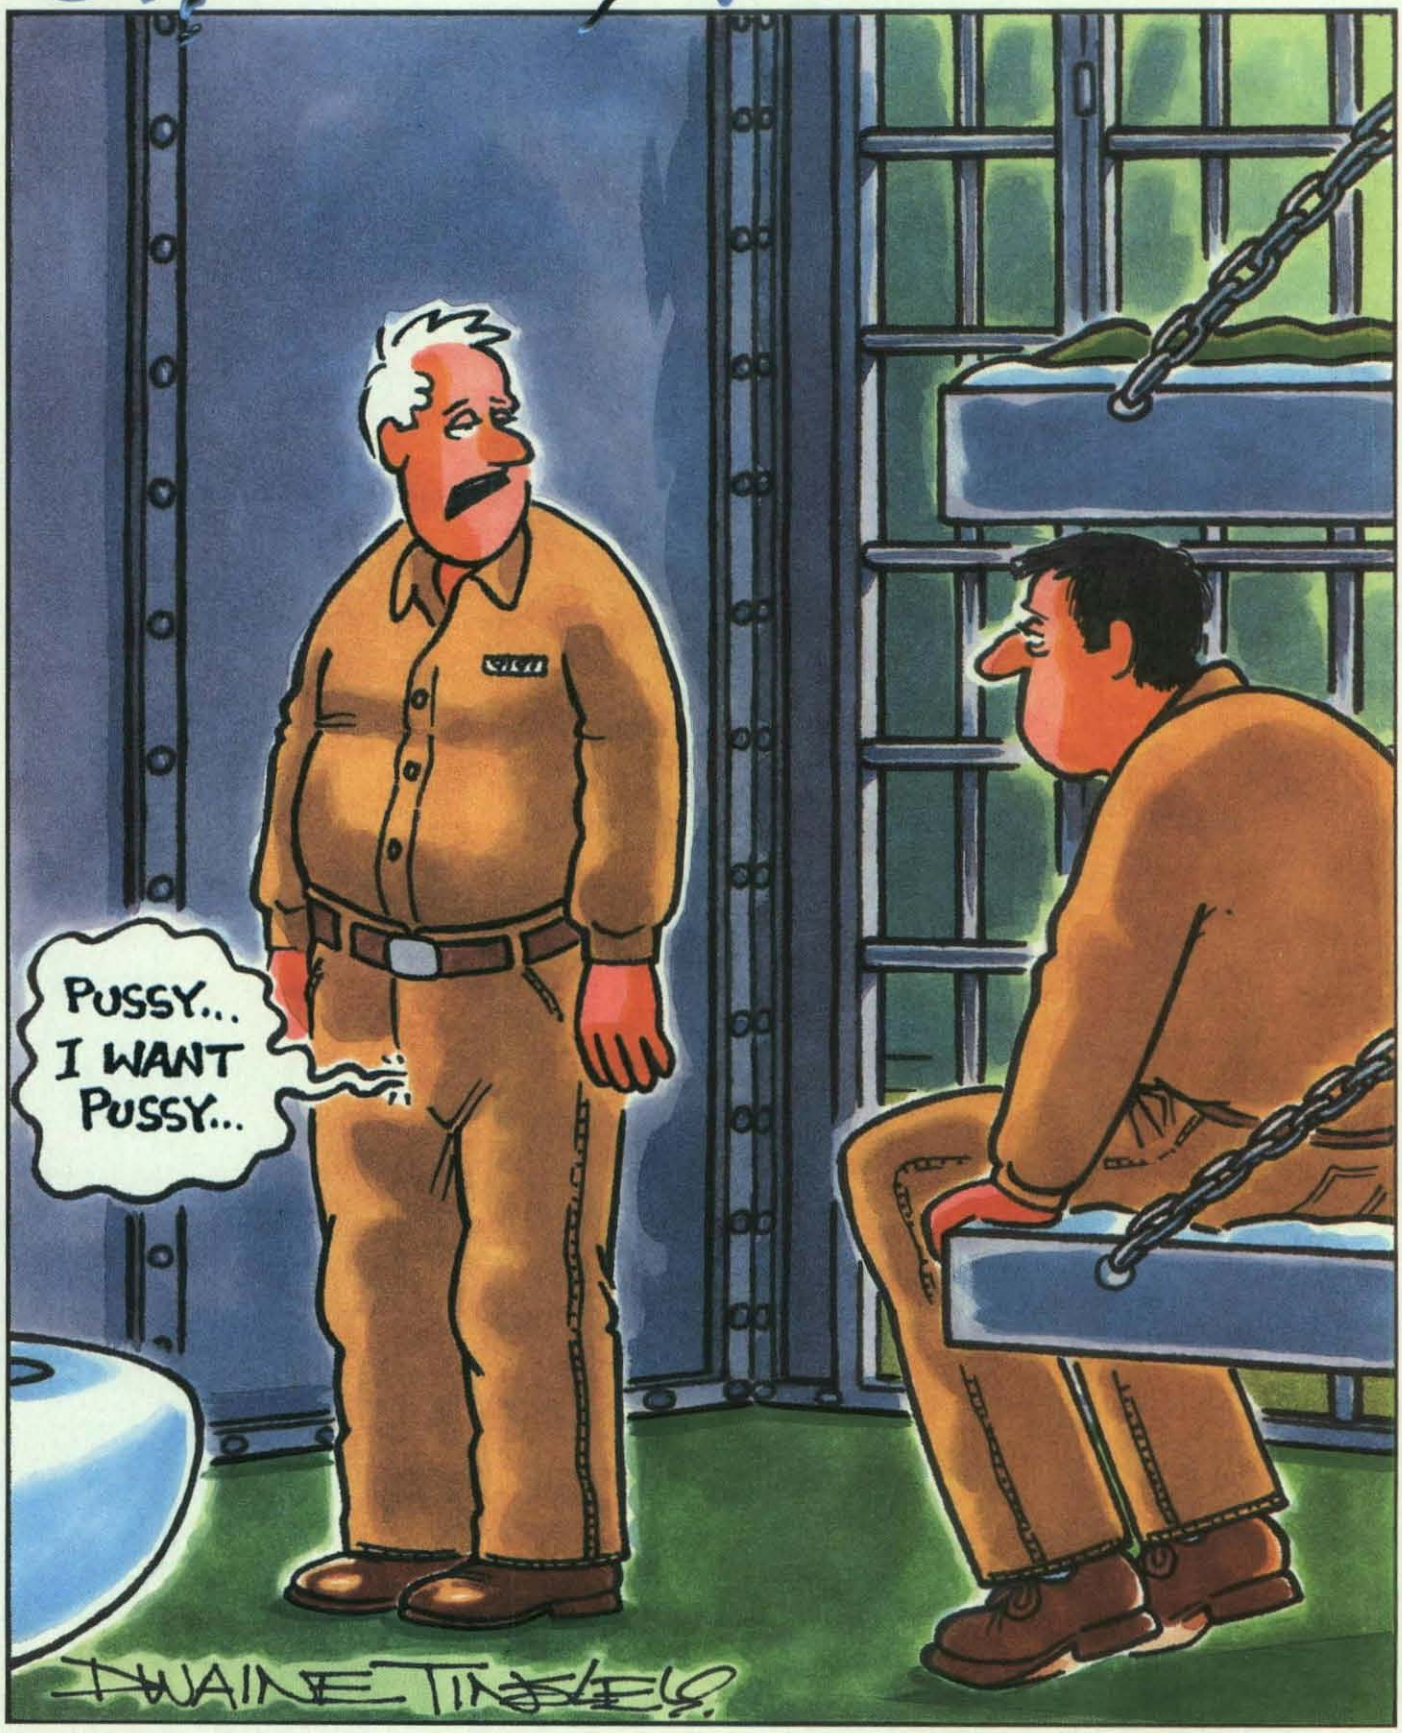

Question: How can Tammy Bakker lose ten pounds in one minute?
Answer: Remove her makeup.

A man came home sporting a pair of boots he'd spent $180 for. He anticipated admiring comments from his wife, but she didn't even appear to notice that he had them on. Somewhat pissed off, he waited until she was in bed later on, and then marched into the bedroom stark naked except for the fancy footwear. "It's about time you paid some attention to what my prick is pointing at," he announced, striking a pose.

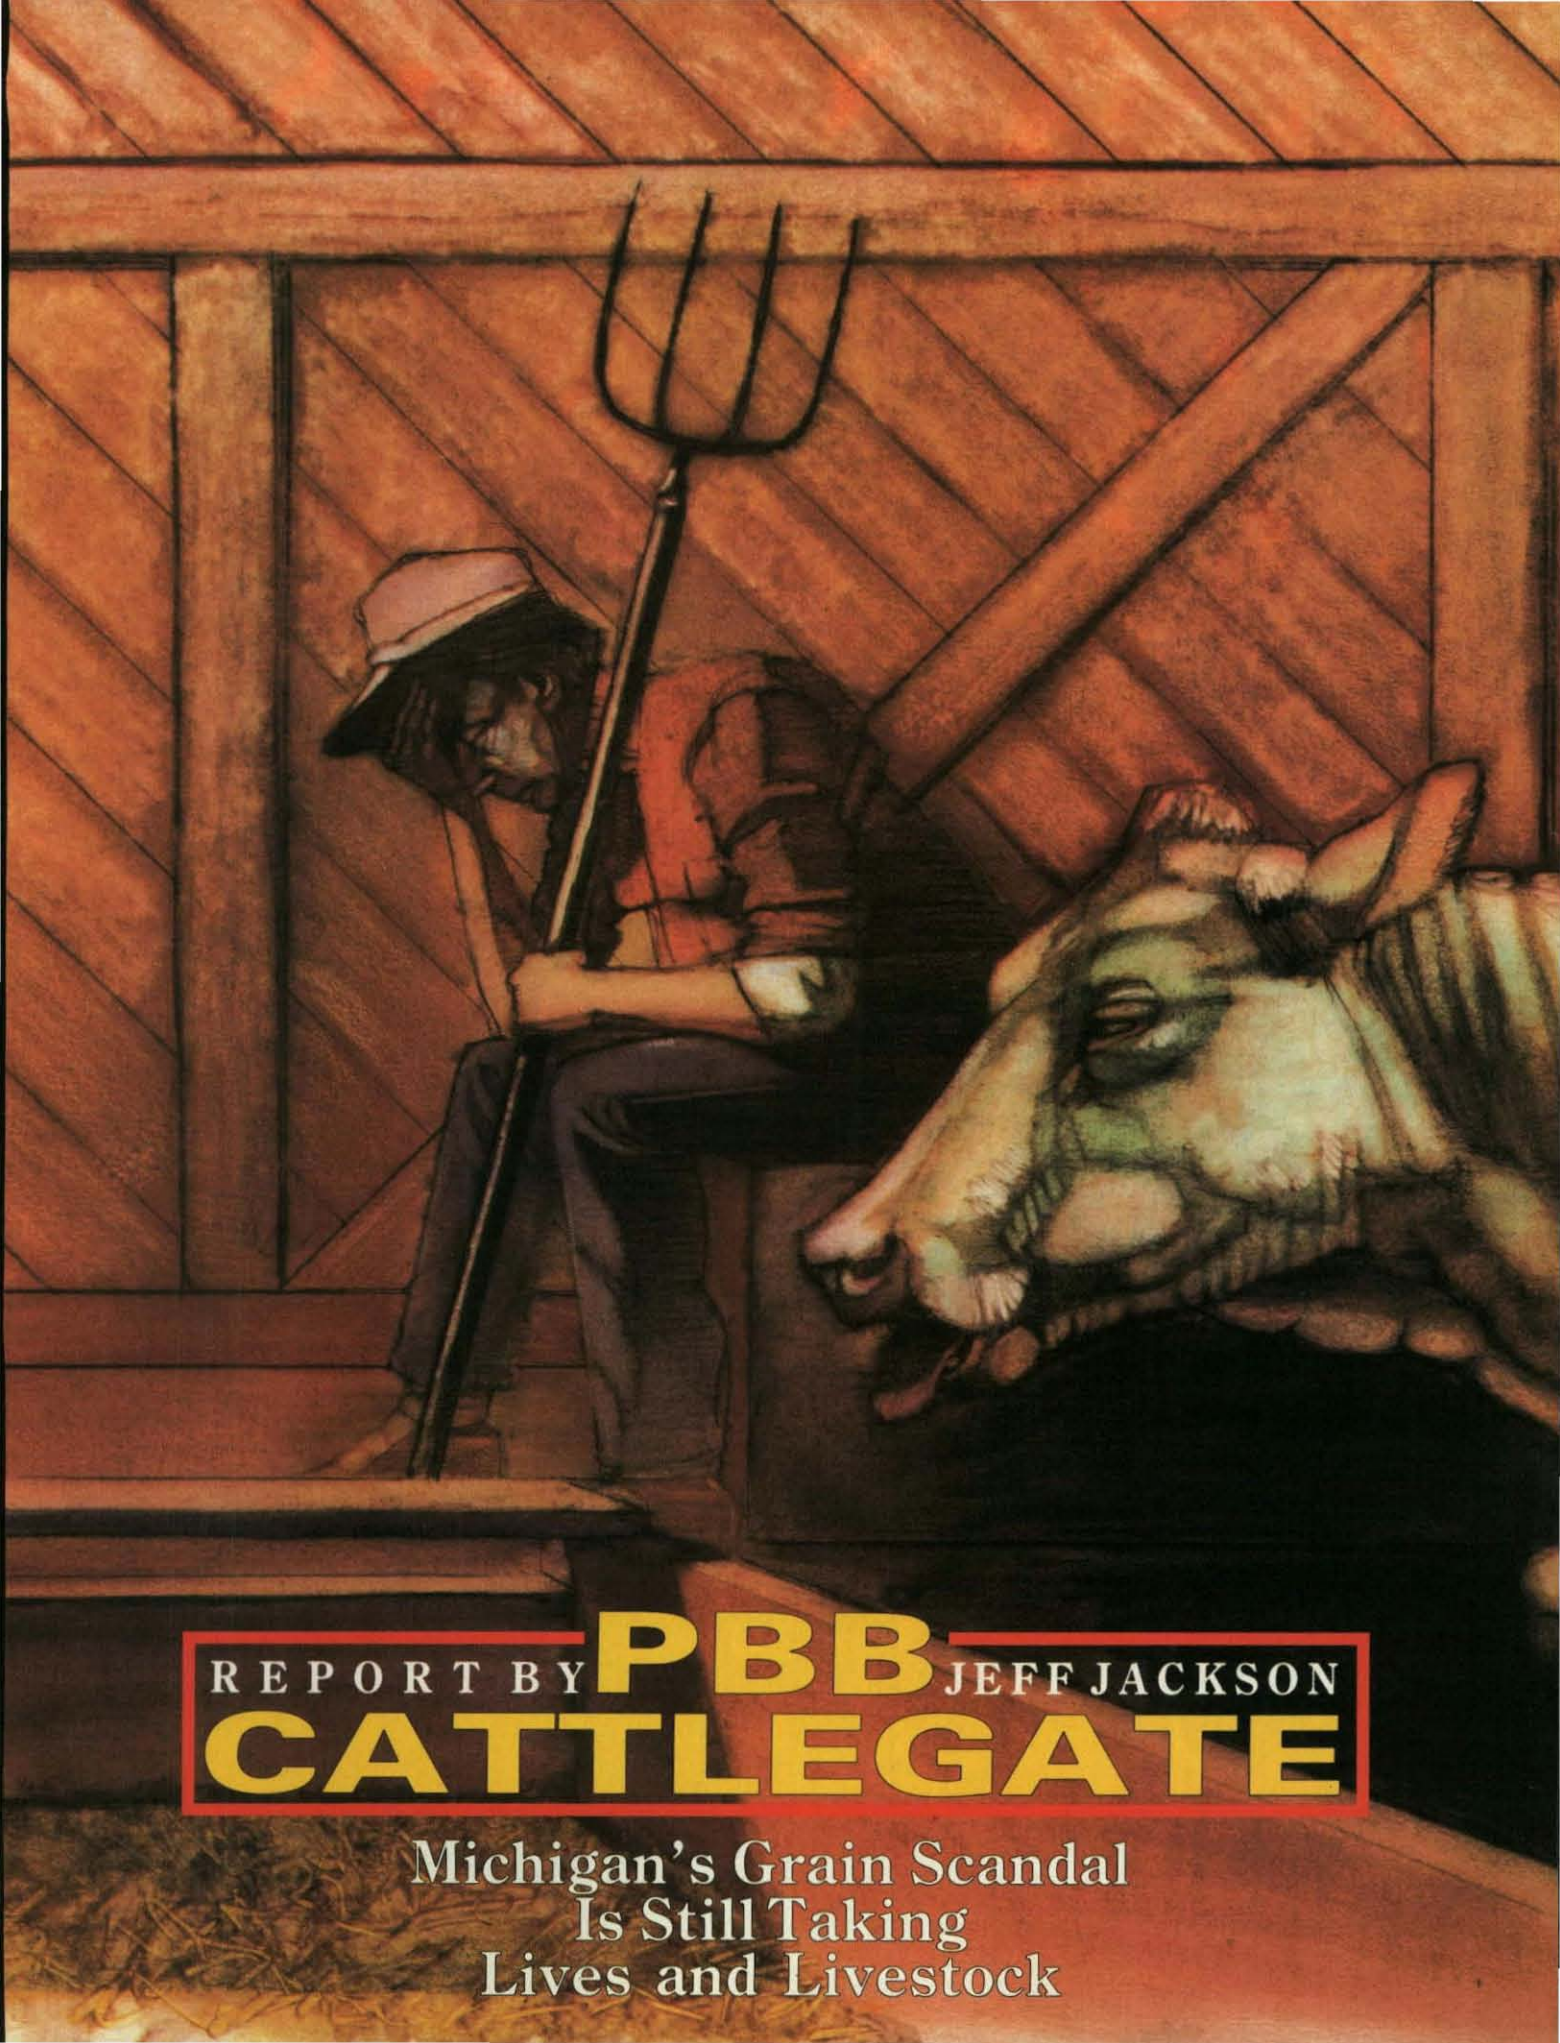

Looking down at the new boots, she shrugged and muttered, "Too bad you didn't buy a hat."

PBB CATTLEGATE

Michigan's Grain Scandal Is Still Taking Lives and Livestock

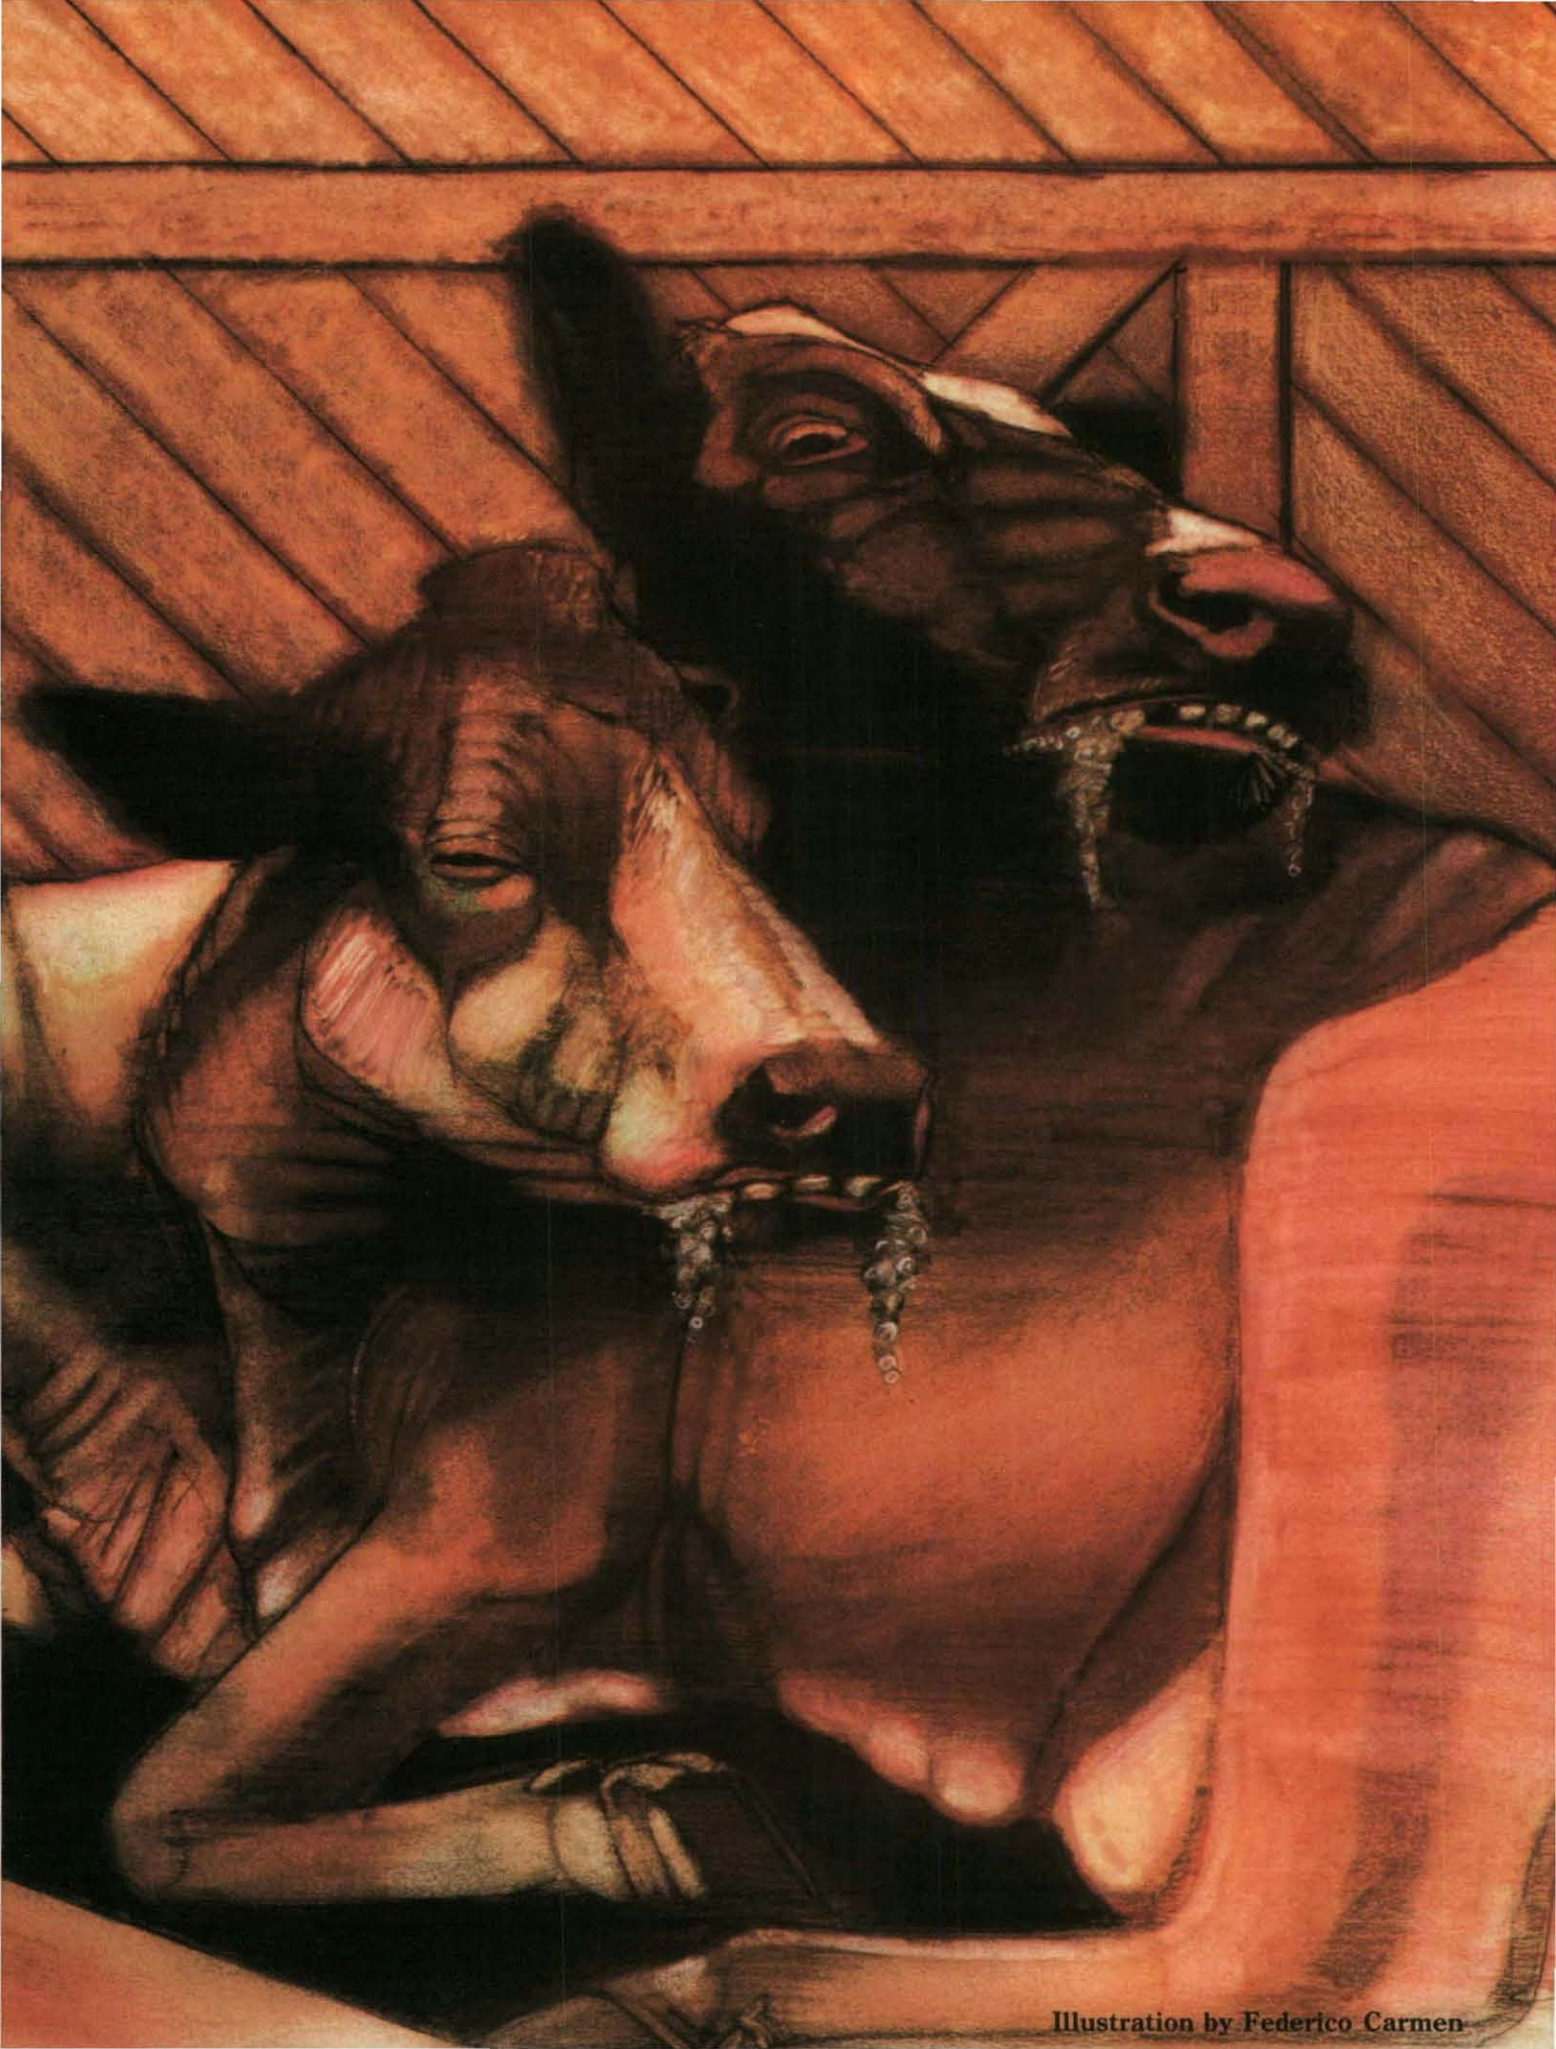

Illustration by Federico Carmen

CATTLEGATE

PBB is a deadly poison with mutagenic properties–it kills the living and mutilates further generations.

"The winter of 1975 was hell. I never want to go through another winter like that. First thing in the morning, you'd pick up a chain saw because there'd be at least one to three cows down dead in the free stall, and you'd have to cut them out," says Michigan farmer Alvin Green.

Local and state veterinarians couldn't find anything wrong. Al's herd of cattle kept going downhill. "They had sores on 'em. They had long hoofs that curled upward. Some of them had the blind staggers, and they would run into barn walls. We had 'em with blood running out of their noses!"

The PBB poisoning wasn't supposed to have made it up to Al's neck of the woods. Farm Bureau Services had sent out letters assuring all the area farmers that their feed mills had been tested, and they were purportedly free of PBB.

Alvin Green's turned out to be what they called a "low-level" PBB-contaminated farm. He became one of many victims of lies and defamation in what Time magazine dubbed "Cattlegate," the government coverup of the largest agricultural disaster in the history of the world.

"PBB was blown out of proportion and caused unnecessary hysteria and fear on the part of the public," says B. Dale Ball, former director of the Michigan Department of Agriculture (MDA).

It all began in 1973 as a simple mistake. The Michigan Chemical Company accidentally shipped the wrong batch of chemicals to Farm Bureau Service's main feed mill in Climax, Michigan. Farm Bureau, a farmer's cooperative, then inadvertently mixed these wrong chemicals into the state's livestock feed.

It took almost a year of diligent effort by a Michigan farm-animal veterinarian, Dr. Ted F. Jackson, and his client, dairy farmer Frederic L. Halbert, before the nightmare mystery was diagnosed as polybrominated biphenyls (PBB), a synthetic fire retardant meant to be mixed into plastic products, not fed to animals or humans. It is a deadly, slow-acting poison with mutagenic properties, meaning it kills the living and continues to mutilate further generations.

On initial poisoning, Halbert's herd of 400 dairy cows abruptly stopped eating. Milk production dropped. The cows stopped breeding, aborted or delivered deformed calves. They stopped responding to medical treatments. Elephantlike skin developed, followed by hair loss, hoof deformities and teeth grinding. Many could not stand up and died.

During this period, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA), the watchdog for public health, refused to help or even investigate, stating, "We are a regulatory, not a research, agency."

Through negligence, ineptitude and deception on the part of corporate and government officials involved, the poisoning grew to such epidemic proportions that the state was faced with the dilemma of economic bankruptcy versus human-health safety.

The complex coverup has dragged on for 14 years. Currently Michigan is a test tube for the largest nonvoluntary cancer and genetic-mutation experiment ever carried out, utilizing its entire human population as unwitting guinea pigs. Today more than 35 million people are estimated to have significant levels of PBB in their bodies.

ARE YOU A PBB VICTIM?

Even if you never set foot in Michigan, you may be a PBB victim. Here are some of the ways PBB may have gotten into you: Parke-Davis swine flu vaccinations, produced from eggs from PBB-contaminated farms; tourism, 30 million tourists are estimated to have visited Michigan between 1973 and 1975, during the heaviest contamination; Campbell's chicken soup; Meade Johnson infant formula; Carnation milk; livestock feed.

The magnitude of this tragedy is shown by the numbers. In the years after PBB contamination was first detected, the government destroyed some 32,000 cows, 7,000 swine and sheep, and more than 1.5 million chickens. Yet, this is just the hair of the carcass. Most of the PBB-contaminated livestock entered the human food chain in the form of milk, cheese, eggs, hamburger and other food items. Today, nearly 15 years after the contamination began, over 90% of Michigan's residents have PBB in their bodies.

"Michigan Department of Agriculture (MDA) had a moratorium where the farmers could dump all their sick and injured cattle on the market. It was terrible the amount of cattle and produce that left this state and went to other states," claims PBB victim Robert Geering, another disgruntled farmer.

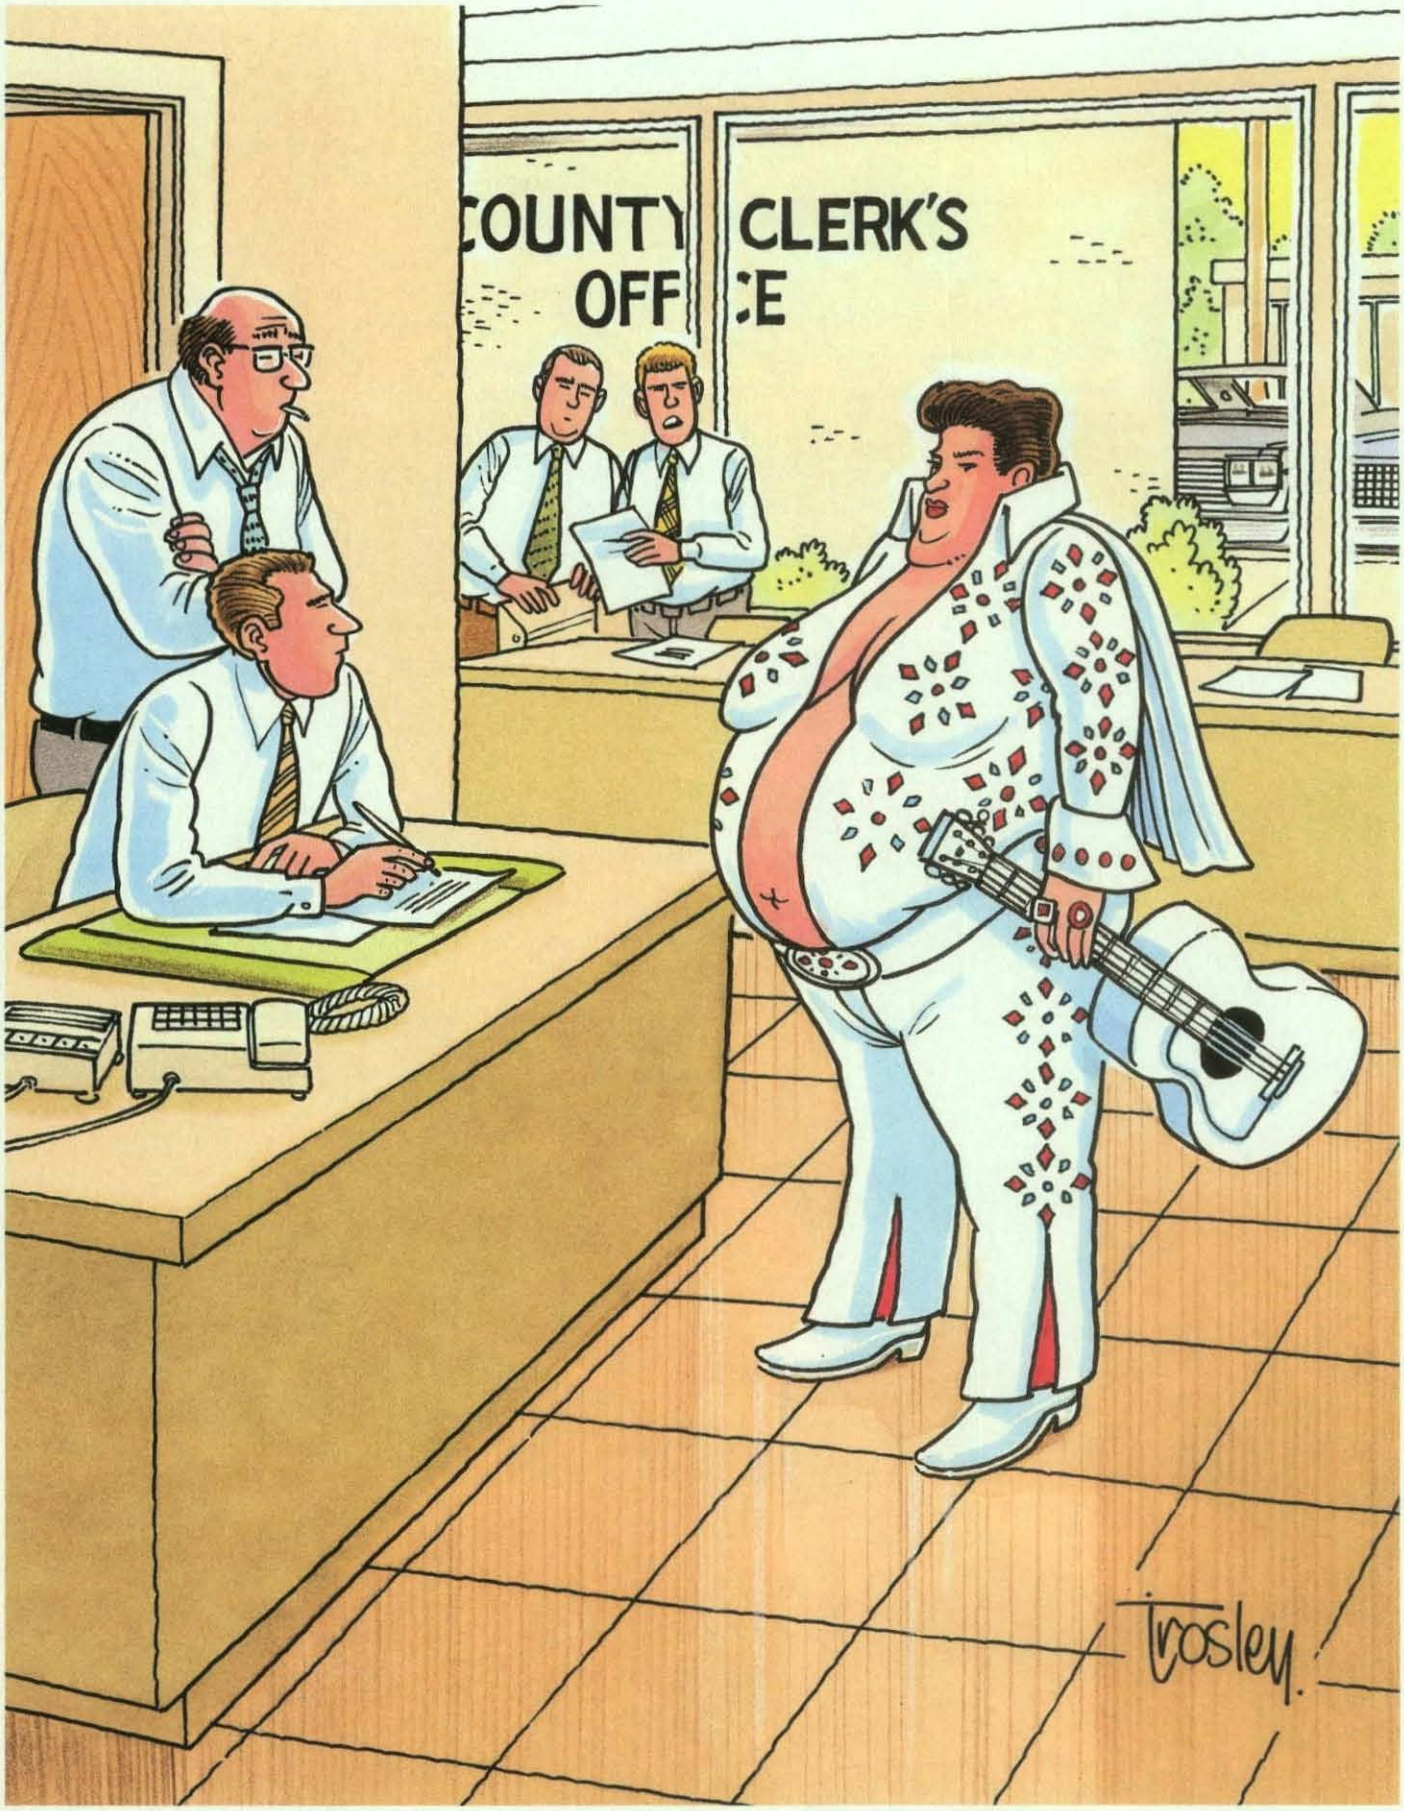

"We were very successful at keeping all the contaminated products off the shelves. There wasn't any contaminated dairy products that got out to the consumer," counters Dr. Paul McCarthy, MDA veterinarian.

But the FDA, in spot-testing over the Tiffany and Keisha, two of filmdom's most famous fuckdolls, decide to get away from the perpetual pud-pounding for a little secluded canoe trip. (Wisely, the girls wear safety vests, lest they fall in and sink to the bottom from the substantial weight of their enormous water wings.) Soon the repetitive paddle-stroking gives way to even more stroking, and suddenly, things are wet all over. After a cunt-lapping, tongue-flicking float, it's time to pull the boat ashore. The forest's two newest beavers skip the Spam dinner and opt for tastier meats, giving the gorgeous gashers a chance to show what real wildlife is before cooling down in front of a campfire. Something tells us that no matter how hot the flames get, the girls will never get dry.

Farm Bureau recalled the PBB-tainted feed, then ran it back through, recontaminating the feed supply.

years, has found PBB in the food products of 13 states.

D. ALPHA CLARK, D.V.M.

Doc Clark took to waking up in the middle of the night in a cold sweat in late 1974. "I was treating the same cows up to 42 times," says Clark. "They wouldn't respond!"

WHO'S ON FIRST?

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) refused to get involved, claiming it was a state problem. The MDA claimed it was Farm Bureau's problem. Farm Bureau blamed Michigan Chemical. Michigan Chemical wasn't answering their telephones.

"Farm Bureau told us we were the only farm with a problem," states Rick Halbert. Farm Bureau recalled the PBB-tainted feed, then ran it back through their mill machinery, recontaminating the entire state's feed supply. Eventually more than 700 farms were affected.

BAD FARM MANAGERS

The MDA denied that PBB had spread like wildfire across the state. Instead, they accused farmers of being bad farm managers and starving their animals. Former MDA director B. Dale Ball explained, "Common table salt can be lethal if consumed in large amounts."

MDA officials also said: "If you fed your cows too many pickles, you'd have the same problems."

FDA SETS HIGH LIMITS

FDA set guidelines of one part per million in body fat based on the limitations of outdated machinery that could only test that low. Animals testing well within the limits were still obviously sick.

GROSS MISCONDUCT

"The MDA's tests on my animals kept coming back 'none detected,' and yet my animals kept dying," says Al Green. Doc Clark sent duplicate sets of samples from Green's livestock to an independent laboratory, and their results showed almost ten times more PBB than the state's tests for the same animals. MDA, Green insists, was falsifying PBB test results in order to send milk and sick animals into the human food chain.

The high PBB levels set by the FDA amounted to a protective shield for the Farm Bureau and Northwest Industries, the conglomerate that owned Michigan Chemical, a subsidiary merged with Velsicol Chemical. Farmers couldn't make claims for damages as long as their herds tested out as legally salable for market.

The federal Farmers Home Administration (FHA) threatened to foreclose on farmers' loans if they didn't go along with the game plan. Alvin Green was the first farmer to tell the government to shove it. Legally, he could sell his sick cattle to market. Instead, Al took his rifle out and shot his herd. He took the loss, almost $1 million by his estimates.

When Doc Clark started vocally challenging MDA's honesty, it struck back by issuing statements to the newspapers implying he might be arrested for illegally transporting animals over state lines for research purposes.

Farmers rallied at a nearby farm with their deer rifles, ready to bear arms against the state to protect Doc Clark.

The bureaucrats never arrested Doc Clark, but they did wear him down. "It's not easy fighting a bunch of asshole bureaucrats with the power of the state and Big Business backing 'em up."

"I saw a lot of herds, a lot of dairy animals that were supposedly very heavily infected with PBB, and I never saw an animal that showed any physical change in its ability to get around," states Dr. Paul McCarthy, MDA veterinarian.

"As a child, you're brought up in our schools to believe in our government and obey the laws. But then, when they begin covering things up and lying–well, it's just terrible what they did!" Hilda Green's voice trembles as she recounts the trauma of those nightmare years. Unfortunately, the nightmare is not over for Hilda. Within the past year she was hospitalized to have part of her stomach removed for tumors that contained PBB.

GOVERNOR'S COVERUP

The economy of the state of Michigan was in bad shape when PBB began. The auto industry was taking a beating from the imports and the gas crunch. Unemployment was up. Governor William Milliken was battling for his political life.

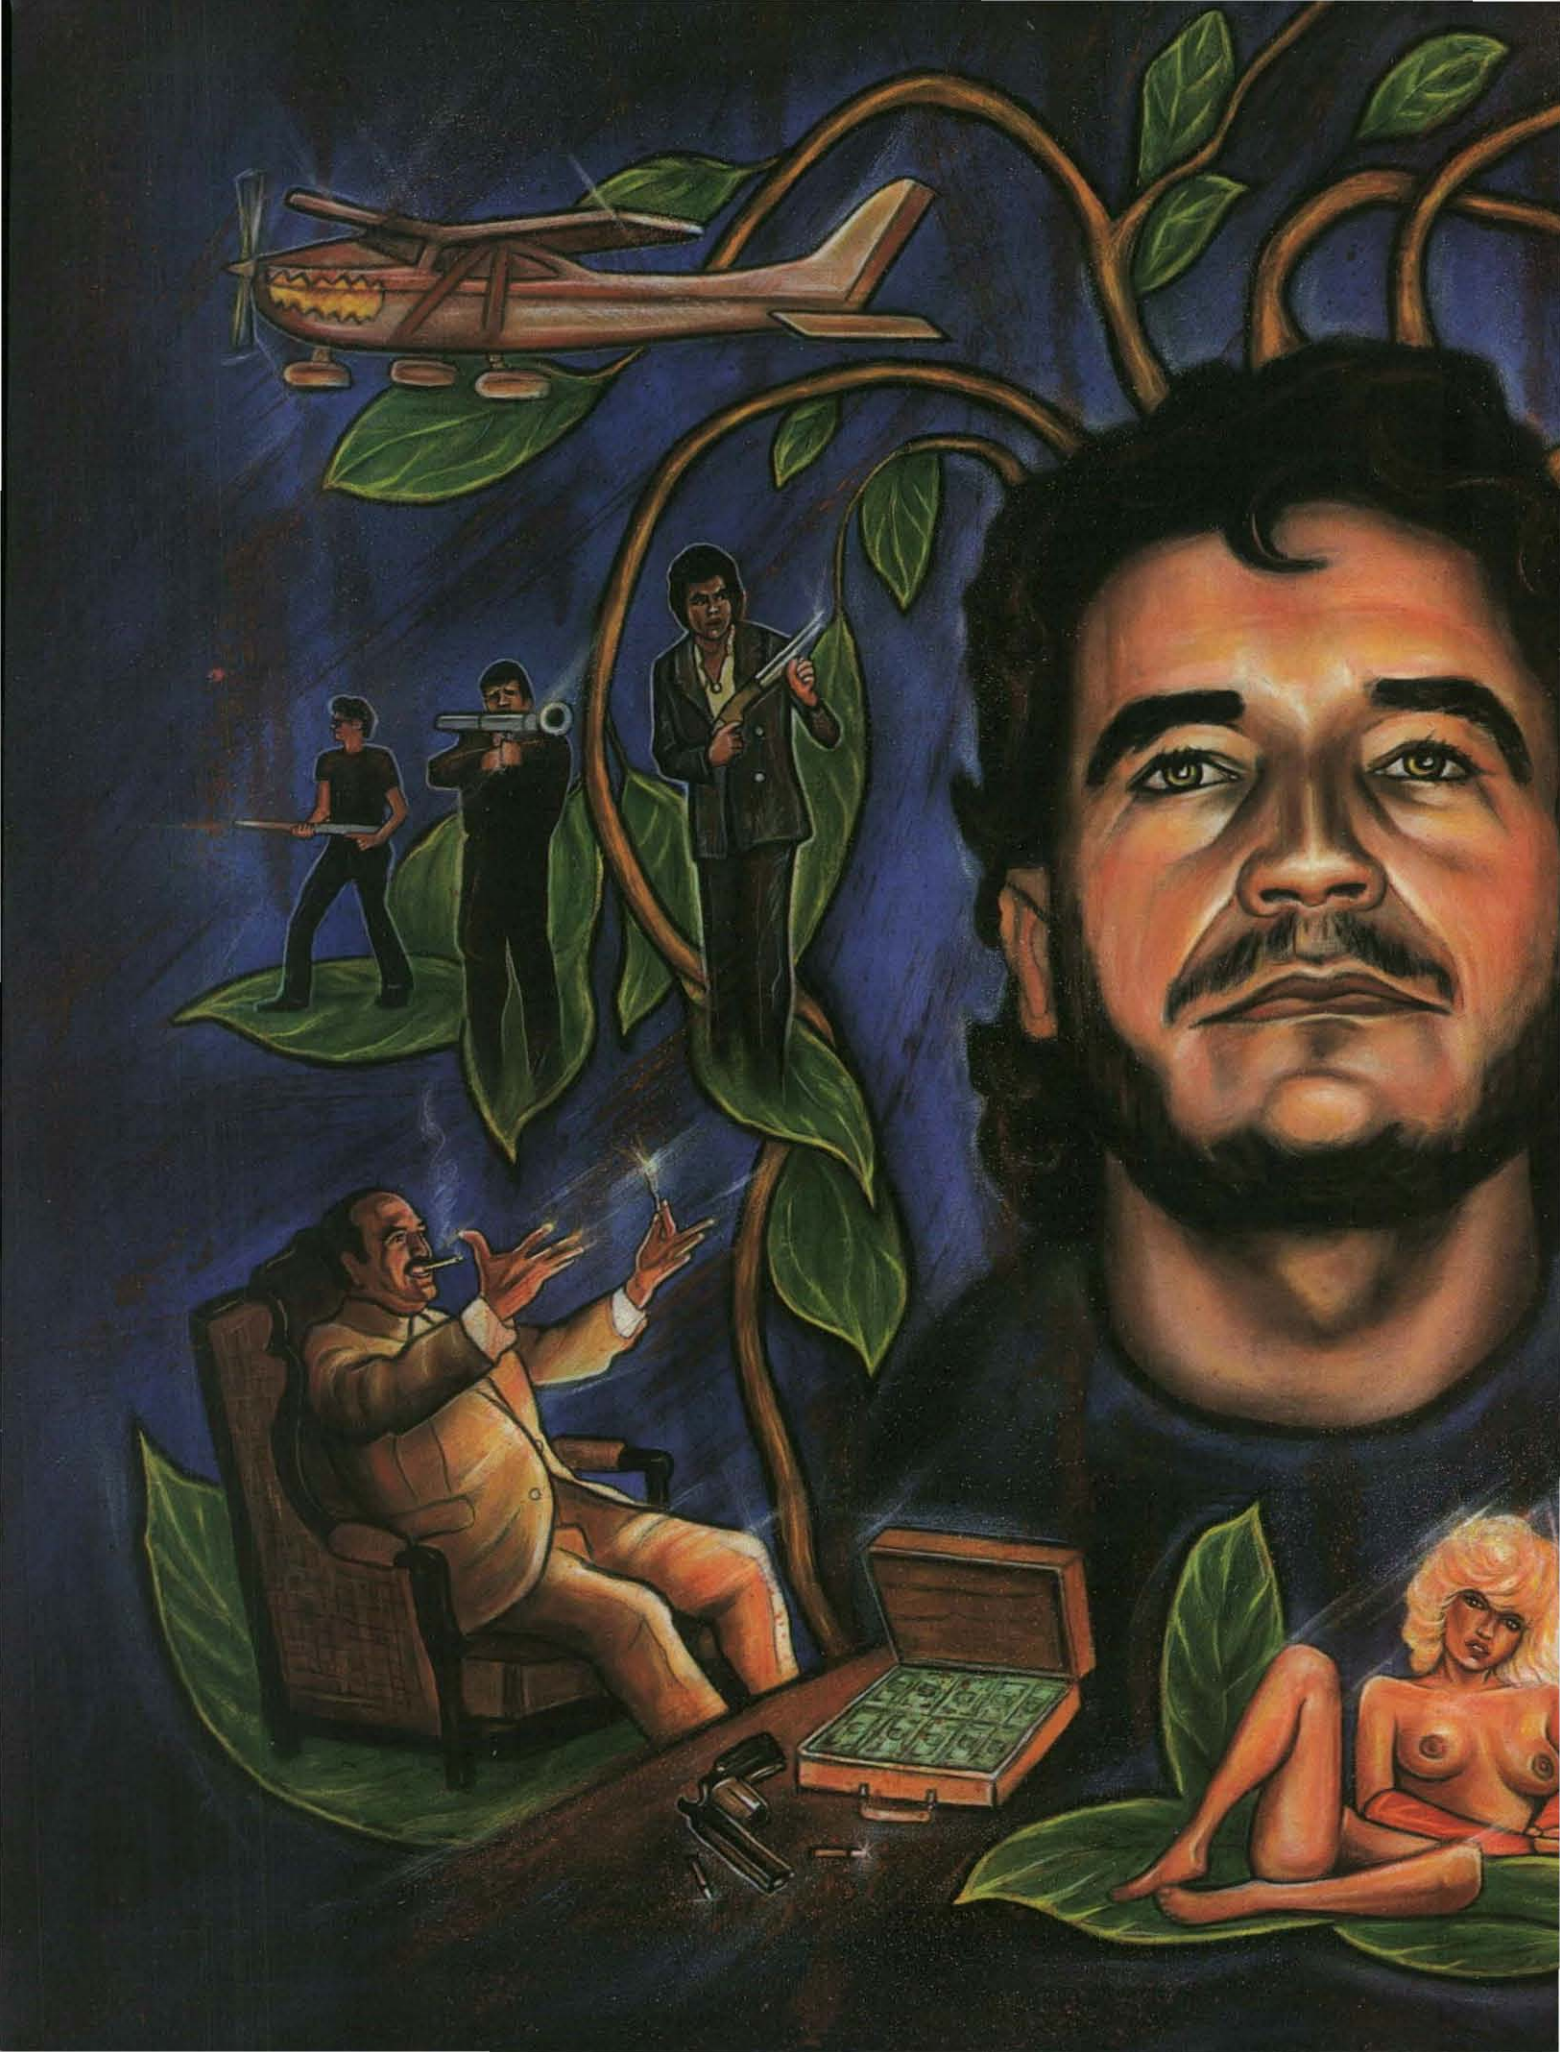

In late 1974, Dr. Irving J. Selikoff, a preeminent researcher and discoverer of the health hazards of asbestos, offered to come to Michigan to measure PBB's effects for free. Governor Milliken ignored Selikoff 's offer, and it wasn't until two years later that Michigan House Speaker Bobby D. Crim invited Selikoff.

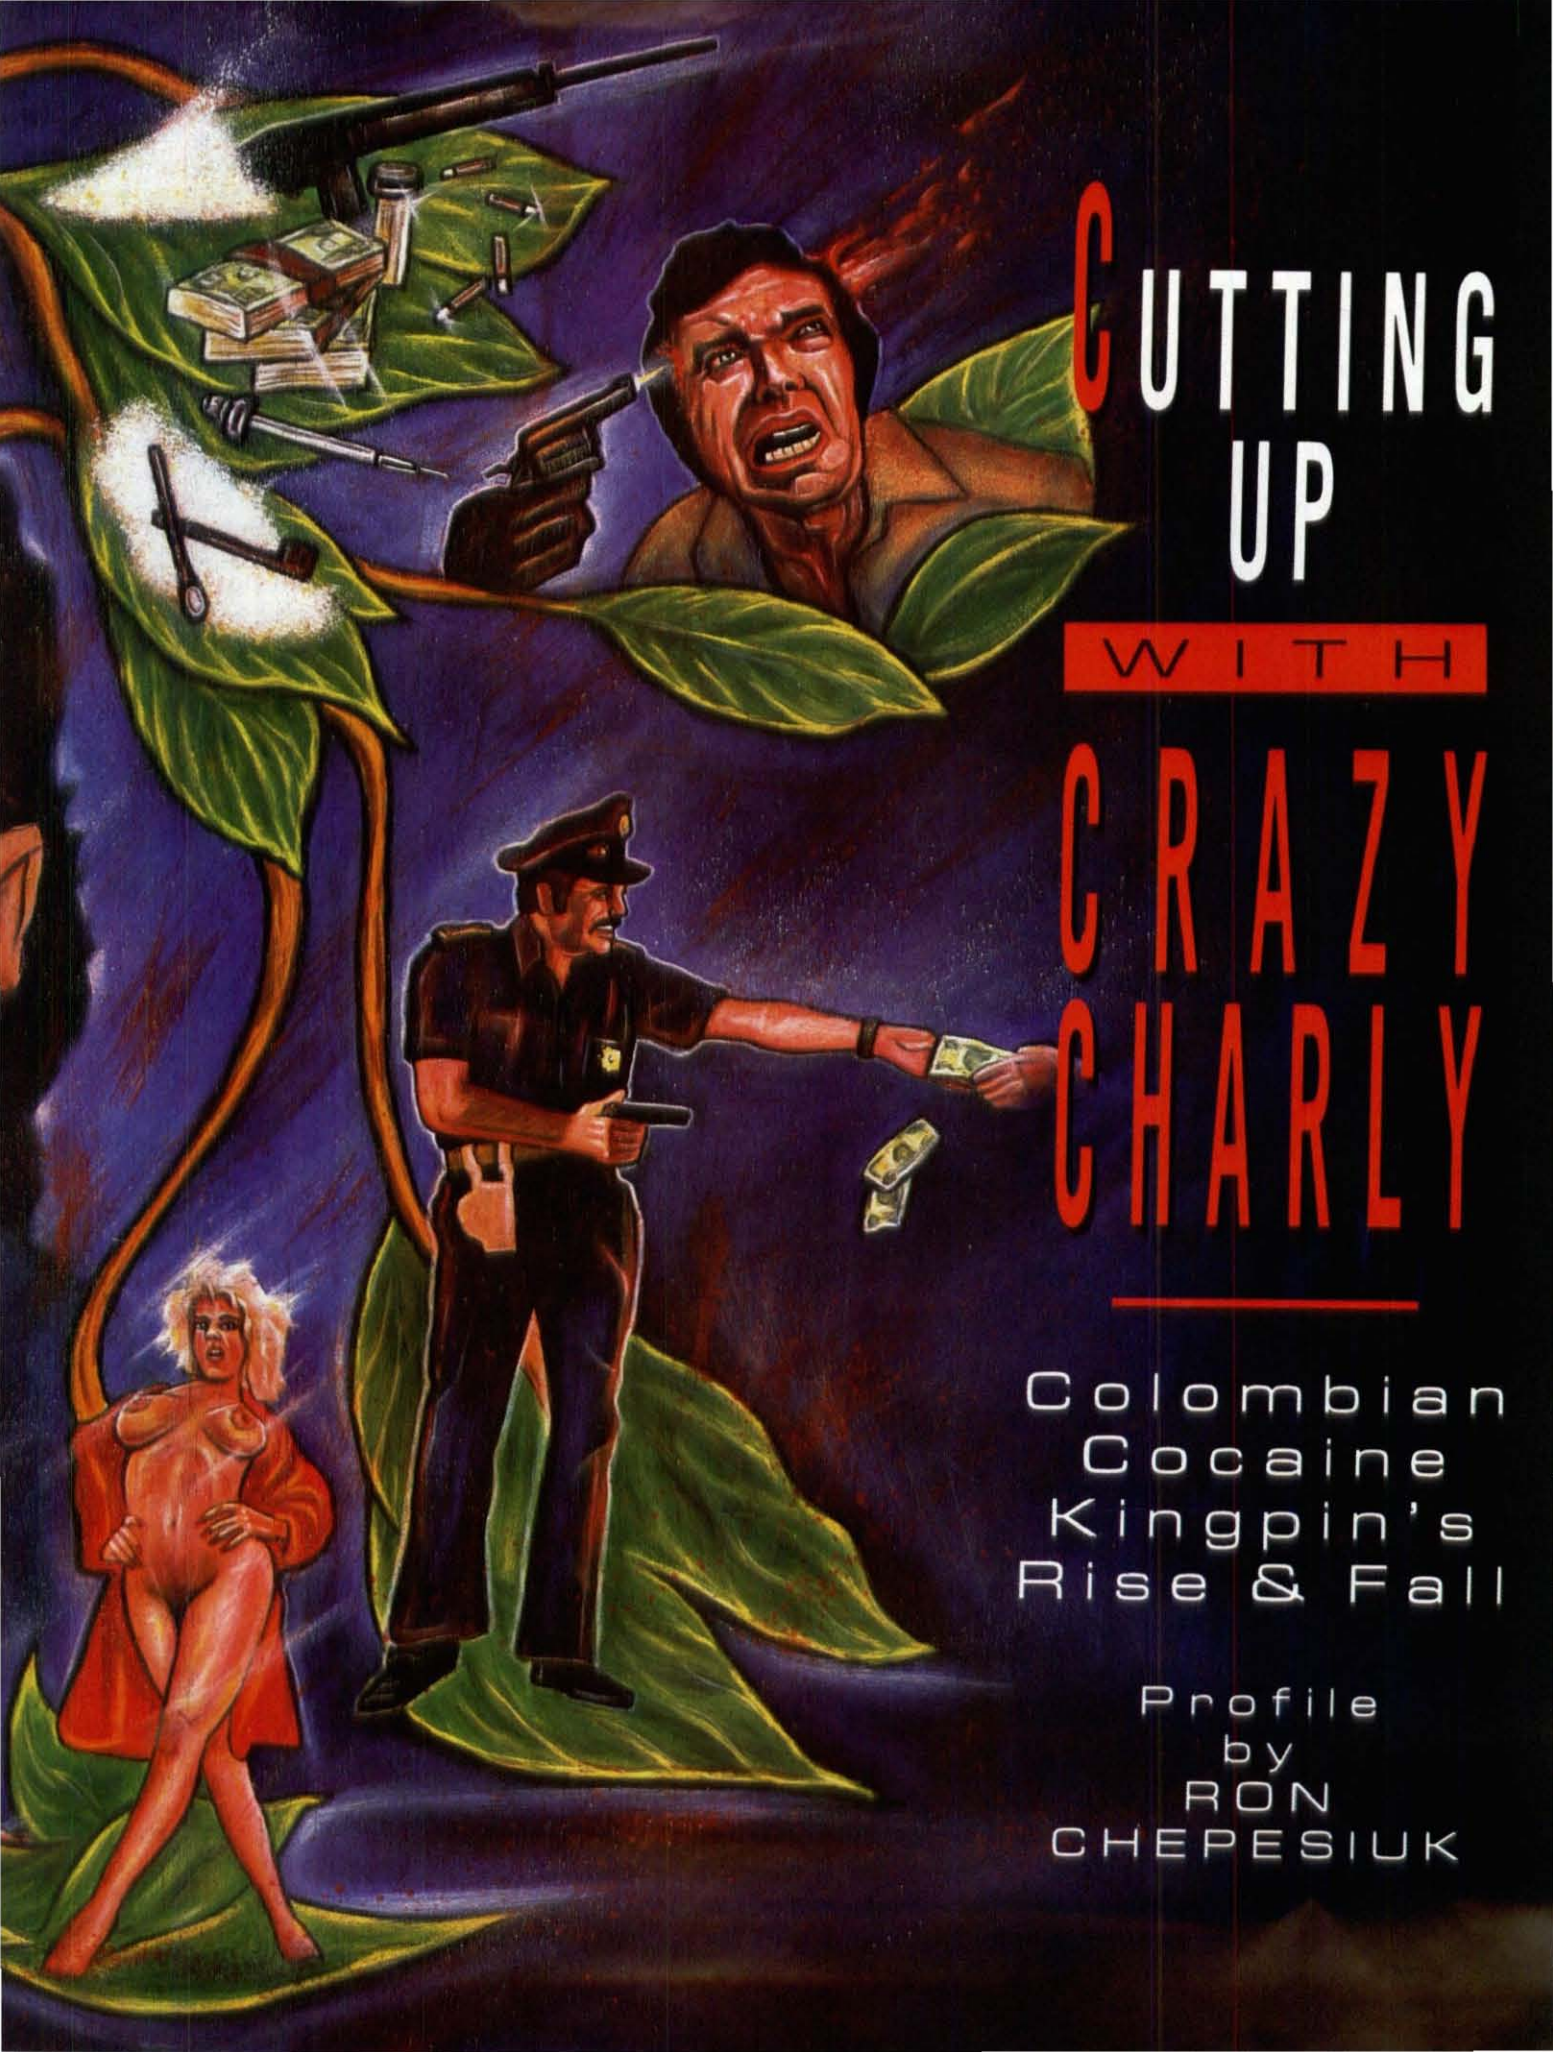

The delay was another example of the government's paranoia. "I think it was Milliken's fear of being tied to a massive poisoning of a population that he was charged with overseeing. It was comparable with Three Mile Island and the way that was handled. Milliken looked around with horror at what he had

CRAZY CHARLY
Colombian Cocaine Kingpin's Rise & Fall
Profile by RON CHEPESIUK

CRAZY CHARLY

At age 15 he moved with his mother to New York, where he began to deal cocaine.

Bogota, Colombia–The private party flowed with booze, cocaine and grass, and none of the revelers were more surprised at its ending than the host. Carlos Lehder Rivas, one of the world's most wanted fugitives and richest men, awoke, still groggy from partying, to hear the staccato of automatic gunfire.

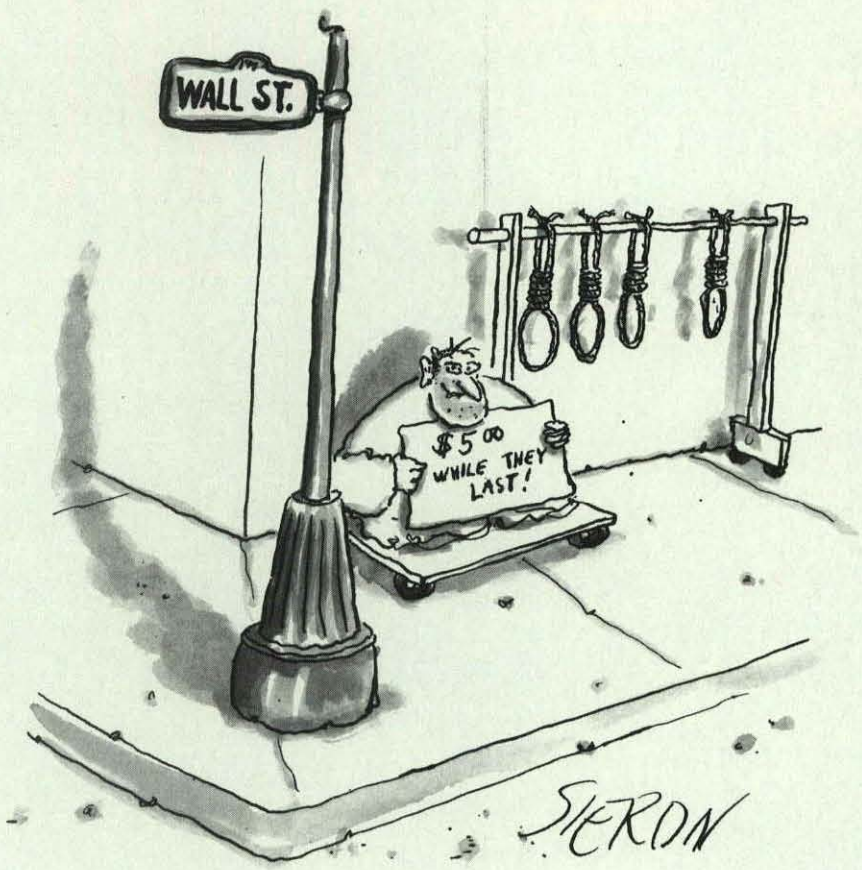

At daybreak on February 4, 1987, an elite 20-man Colombian police unit surrounded one of Lehder's mansions, located about 20 miles outside Medellin, the heart of the South American country's illegal cocaine industry. Receiving an anonymous phone call, the police believed they had trapped a guerrilla cell.

They were in for a surprise. "The Virgin Mary has fallen from the sky," exclaimed the elated commander of the Colombia National Police assault team when Lehder turned out to be one of the 15 men captured in the raid (the other 14 were his bodyguards).

The Colombian government knew that no jail in the country could hold the powerful drug baron. With collaboration of the U.S. Government, papers were hastily drawn up to extradite Lehder to the U.S. to stand trial on drug charges. Before the sun had set that day, Lehder was on a Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) plane to Tampa, Florida.

Sleeping through most of the trip, Lehder awoke over South Florida, apparently not knowing where he was. A DEA agent on the plane asked if he wanted a cigarette. Lehder snarled at the agent, "No! The only thing I smoke is marijuana."

The next morning Lehder appeared in federal court, where the U.S. district attorney described death threats Lehder had made against law-enforcement officials. The accused interrupted loudly, shaking his shoulder-length hair, "That's a lie!" Clad in boots, bluejeans and a T-shirt, but wearing an $8,000 Rolex watch, Lehder, reportedly worth close to a billion dollars, told the judge that he was an indigent farmer who had no assets in the U.S. and whose assets in Colombia had been frozen by his government. The magistrate agreed to provide a court-appointed attorney and arraigned the suspect on a charge of helping to smuggle 12 tons of cocaine into the U.S. in '81.

It was a humble ending to the criminal career of a man who had once vowed that, if captured, he would kill a Colombian federal judge each week until he was freed. The DEA had spent nearly a decade hunting down the elusive drug kingpin. He was considered the ringleader of the Medellin Cartel, the Colombian drug mafia that the U.S. government says supplies 80% of the cocaine entering the U.S. Lehder, according to Miguel Cano, production editor of the Bogota, Colombia-based newspaper El Espectador, "did more to corrupt, terrorize and demoralize the country than any other Colombian criminal figure during the past ten years."

The flamboyant Lehder often eluded capture in spectacular fashion. He once escaped so narrowly that he left behind a suitcase containing $1.6 million. The brash fugitive then demanded the return of $1.8 million, accusing the police of stealing the difference.

Lehder's style, erratic behavior and much-publicized likes and dislikes (his two heroes were Adolf Hitler and John Lennon) earned the displeasure of his more conservative associates in the Medellin Cartel, who prefer a low profile to protect their drug business. They dubbed him El Loquito Carlos–Crazy Charly.

Crazy Charly's initiation into the criminal world began as a boy not in the rural heartland of Colombia, where he was born in 1949, but on the streets of Spanish New York. Lehder's parents, a German father and a Colombian mother, divorced when he was four. At age 15 he moved with his mother to New York, where he began to deal cocaine. Three years later he was arrested and convicted of importing 200 pounds of marijuana into the U.S. Lehder served a two-year prison term and was deported to Colombia in 1976.

In a 1983 interview with the Colombian magazine Semana, Lehder detailed the cartel's beginnings. He had an addiction for airplanes, Lehder recalled. With the money he managed to bring with him after being kicked out of the U.S., he went to the Bahamas and bought his first airplane. By buying, repairing and selling old planes, Lehder boasted of making his first million by age 23. For $4.5 million he bought Norman's Key, a small island in the Bahamas. He built a radar-equipped airstrip from which he could smuggle drugs to the U.S. via the short final hop to the Florida coast.

Rick Cody (not his real name) worked for Lehder during much of the first year of his drug-smuggling operation. Rick met and became friends with Lehder in jail in 1978, where the future drug baron was serving two months for tax problems involved with his importation of cars. Rick was serving time for a hash-smuggling conviction.

"Have a seat on the examination table. The doctor will be right with you!"

"We were brothers. We shared the same jail cell together," Rick recalls. "When we were in the Bahamas doing our thing, we'd frequently bed the same women."

Lehder bought protection for his illegal activities by bribing Colombian and Bahamian officials. "There was no problem at all," claims Rick. "We didn't have to carry guns. On the contrary, we had total protection. Money talks, and the operation was real big money. I remember one time personally depositing $35 million in a Bahamian bank–no questions asked."

Rick's words are supported by James Mills' five-year investigation into the international drug trade. In his best-selling book, The Underground Empire, Mills says Lehder and fugitive financier Robert Vesco, wanted in the U.S. for, among other things, an illegal $200,000 donation to Richard Nixon's election campaign, bribed Prime Minister Lyanden Pindling to allow them to smuggle drugs through Norman's Key.

Rick worked as a pilot for Lehder, flying drugs into the U.S. At this time, the bad guys were way ahead of the good guys in strategy, merely using small aircraft to make the drops. "We used putt-putt little aircrafts," Rick recalls. "None of this bullshit you have today of trying to fly low over the water with your lights off. We didn't have to do that."

Although the money was easy, Rick didn't feel right about his involvement. He explains, "I got scared of the whole thing. It got to be too flashy, too fast and too much for me."

Rick felt especially uneasy about Lehder. "On one hand, he is an egomaniac, ruthless and crazy. He thinks of himself as the reincarnation of Adolf Hitler, who would one day rule Colombia. On the other side, he's generous, ambitious and smart–a genius. He was a good businessman who did what he said he was going to do. He did it in a professional and ruthless manner. A lot of people got killed. He didn't have any qualms about it." Rick, now in the federal witness protection program, is a witness for the prosecution in Carlos Lehder's trial in Jacksonville, underway at press time.

Lehder's business boomed, but the DEA was onto the mastermind. The Bahamian government allowed the DEA to operate on the island, and Lehder thought it best to return to Colombia.

He and four other Colombians, Pablo Escobar and the three Ochoa Vasquez brothers (Juan David, Fabio and Jorge Luis) had, by the early 1980s, firmly established the Medellin Cartel as the major drug trafficking pipeline to the U.S. According to a November 1986 indictment filed in Miami against Lehder and his associates, cartel members pooled resources and established raw-material supply lines, built conversion laboratories and acquired more transportation for the growing operations.

The ingenious drug bosses also agreed upon sale and distribution networks to fulfill the increasing demands of cocaine-hungry American users. They eliminated competition among themselves, averting bloodshed and maximizing profits, just as any ecomonic cartel will exploit any other resource or region.

The drug pipeline begins with representatives of the cartel purchasing coca paste and leaves in Peru and Bolivia, then shipping the raw material to be processed into cocaine powder at several clandestine labs in Colombia, Nicaragua and Panama. Each lab has its own airstrip and housing for personnel. Shipment of the cocaine from South and Central America to the U.S. is arranged through "brokerage houses," operated by the Medellin and other smaller Colombian cartels. At these houses, cocaine producers meet to pool loads and negotiate fees with pilots.

Prosecutors charge that since the beginning of the '80s, Lehder and his confederates smuggled at least 58 tons of cocaine into the U.S.

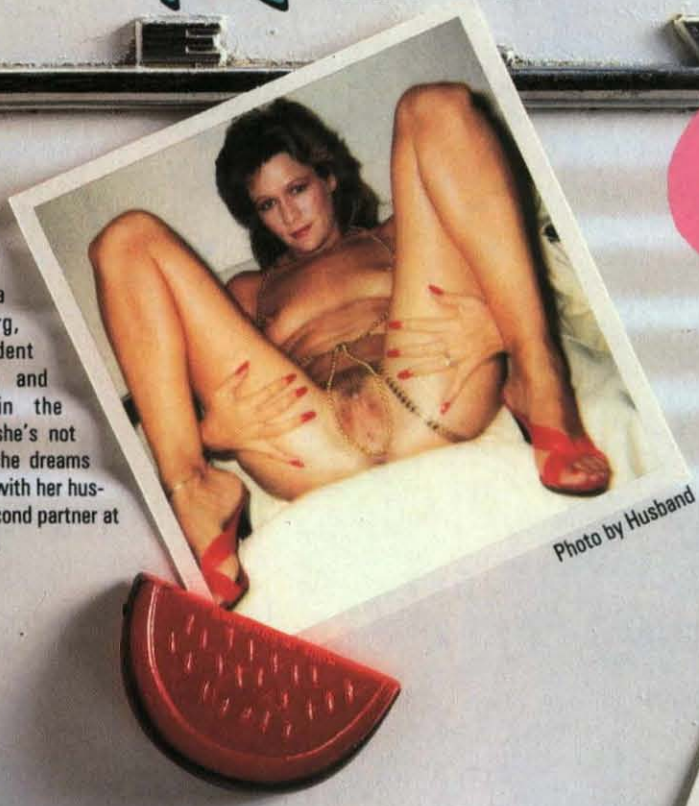

By the mid-1980s the Medellin Cartel had become so powerful that Colombians worried the drug pipeline was destroying their country. In 1986, 5,000 murders were reported in Colombia (population 28 million). Close to half of the killings took place in Medellin province, where DEA sources say the cartel operates a school for assassins. Colombian authorities estimate that close to 80% of the Medellin police force is working for the cartel.

Top government officials, including Rodrigo Lara Bonilla, the justice minister who helped negotiate the extradition treaty signed by Colombia and the U.S. in 1979, have been murdered. DEA officer John Lawn says, "They've killed 300 police officers and dozens of newspaper people, not only their enemy, wrought and thought the best thing to do was to cover it up and get out," theorizes Michigan State Senator John Kelly.

Michigan farmers marched on the state capitol with dead, PBB-tainted animals piled on coffins.

FARMERS MARCH ON CAPITOL

Finally, in desperation to be heard and to get some action, hundreds of Michigan farmers marched on the state capitol in March of 1976. They drove up in tractors and trucks loaded with dead, deformed carcasses of PBB-tainted animals piled on coffins. They carried signs stating, "PBB Got Me—Don't Let the State Poison You!" Their voices went unheard.

GOVERNOR'S PANEL IGNORED

In an effort to restore the public's confidence in their governmental agencies, Governor Milliken appointed a panel of prestigious scientific experts to study and assess the levels set for PBB and make recommendations to the MDA as to whether they should be lowered. This gambit backfired when the panel came back with recommendations that PBB levels should be drastically reduced to as close to zero as possible.

The Michigan Agriculture Commission refused to lower the PBB levels.

BIO-ACCUMULATION–NO LEVEL IS SAFE!!!

Test results starting as early as Dr. Ted F. Jackson's 1973 experiments showed that PBB stores in body fat and does not leave. Instead, the levels grow as more PBB is ingested. "It was an insane logic to set levels that allowed any PBB in the food supply and be foolish enough to call it a safe level," observes Jackson.

HUMAN HEALTH STUDY

In mid-1977 Dr. Irving Selikoff completed his initial study of 1,029 Michigan residents. He found a third of the people were afflicted with serious health problems. There was an extraordinarily high incidence of brain dysfunctions and nervous system damage. Other ailments included liver malfunctions, memory loss, diminished sex drives, mental defects and lack of coordination. PBB was also found in mother's breast milk and was passed through the placenta to the fetus of pregnant women.

This directly contradicted the MDH's 1974 study, which found no health problems "directly attributable" to PBB.

AUGUST 1977

Four years after the poisoning began, the state government took action. A law was passed requiring PBB tests on cattle and milk, setting lower PBB limits in food and allowing payments for cattle that had to be destroyed.

THE PITS

The government deemed Kalkaska and Oscoda counties as sites for the burial pits of PBB-condemned animals. Fearing contamination of their land, area citizens protested vehemently, only to be placated with assurrances of a "safe disposal."

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources has since found significant levels of PBB in fish, deer, bear and other wildlife in these same counties.

CORRUPTION

Bill and Bonnie Hughston owned a trucking company and hauled many of the condemned animals to the pits. One day they went to pick up a load of condemned cattle but were told to take the diseased cows to a slaughterhouse in Indiana rather than the pits. They refused.

"We called the state, and Dr. Demming [a state vet] said, 'Yes, go ahead and take 'em to Indiana.' We still refused, and they eventually sent us a letter saying it was all right, and it was on the state letterhead, in a Farm Bureau envelope."

INNOCENT UNTIL PROVEN GUILTY

The Tacoma Trial represented the landmark trial that PBB-activists believed would set a precedent for all low-level farmers in Michigan. It lasted from February 22, 1977, to May 2, 1978. Essentially, the trial was one farmer versus Big Business.

Judge William R. Petersen, a lifelong Republican, took only Velsicol Chemical's research into account in his final judgment. Velsicol spent thousands of dollars to fund research to prove that PBB was harmless to cows. Fighting against this huge chemical company with its loaded coffers, plaintiff Roy Tacoma, a farmer, didn't have the financial resources to "prove within a reasonable doubt" that PBB was guilty.

People were shocked when Judge Petersen's verdict came out not only in favor of the corporations, but proclaimed those representing and testifying for the Tacomas as being "incompetent" and "corrupt."

Curiously, Judge Petersen's verdict was released just ten days before Michigan's gubernatorial elections were held. Incumbent Governor Milliken came from behind in the polls to win the election.

MDH LONG-TERM HEALTH STUDY

"We have a real neat situation, scientifically, where we know when the exposure began and ended, and we're able to follow the people on in time," states Dr. Harold Humphrey, director of

"The only objective health effects we've found for PBB have been psychological," insists an MDH associate.

MDH's long-term health study of 4,000 Michigan residents.

"I don't know if I'm in the long-term health study or not. They came out here a couple of years ago and took some blood and asked me some questions, but I haven't heard from 'em since," says farmer Robert Geering, a PBB victim who is deeply skeptical about the probity of the MDH long-term health study.

PBB IN VITAL ORGANS

In a study originally funded by MDH, Dr. Joseph N. Micelli led a group of experts who performed autopsies on the bodies of ten Michigan residents who died of natural causes or in accidents. PBB was discovered in their hearts, lungs, brains and other vital organs.

The MDH decided against further funding. "They claim they have no more money," Micelli says. "My opinion is, they don't want to study PBB anymore."

PBB SIMILAR TO AIDS

The strongest and most consistent symptoms shown in PBB victims are evidence of suppressed immune systems. Dr. George Bekesi, who worked with Dr. Selikoff in his earlier studies, has found decreased numbers of T cells in PBB-exposed farmers. In layman's terms, this is similar to the AIDS virus, where the human body's disease-fighting system is weakened. That means, if you get a cold, it stays longer and can more easily escalate into pneumonia. It leaves the body open to an infinite variety of physical complications.

"We've had a granddaughter born during the contamination, and we took samples for the Health Department from the placenta and the breast milk right in the delivery room. When we didn't get results, we called, and they said they'd been lost," resident Bonnie Hughston says. "She was born mentally retarded. I suggested they put her on their study, but they never did. I'm the only one left alive from the carload of people I used to drive to the Selikoff Study with. They all died of cancer. I told the MDH, and they said they weren't interested."

"The only objective health effects we've found for PBB have been psychological," insists Dr. Jeoffrey K. Stross, an associate at the MDH.

"Birth defects, miscarriages and stillbirths don't seem pronounced. Of course, national and statewide figures are not available," shares Dr. Humphrey in regard to the Michigan health study.

U.S. Representative Donald Albosta (D-Michigan) disagrees. "There have been more stillbirths in this county [heavily PBB-infected Wexford County] than any other on this Earth."

CANCER RATES

"The cancer-incidence rate is not unusual either by Michigan or national rates," states Dr. Humphrey.

A recent state compilation of cancer statistics shows the Michigan death rate from the disease is nearly 8% higher than the national rate.

LESSON TO BE LEARNED

"PBB is just a symptom of a much larger problem in society. People have lost the guts to stand up and speak out," says Tom Corbett, PBB researcher.

A pattern has emerged over the years that PBB has been in existence. It is a sad pattern and commentary on our world and our government. It shouts for us to wake up and smell the waste dumps burning. Hundreds of millions of dollars have been spent on lawsuits and to replace livestock, but hardly any money has been spent on remedies for the afflicted humans.

DETOXIFICATION

Currently the state of Michigan has invested $250,000–a minute sliver of a multibillion-dollar annual budget–to find ways to remove PBB and other chemicals from its human population.

"The chemical companies are waging all-out war against detoxification," states Senator John Kelly. "They're afraid to admit to any liability for human-health damages, which they feel detoxification implies."

Studies of school children with high levels of PBB show them markedly lower on intelligence-performance tests.

Time is the excuse now. "Based on the scientific information available, we won't know the extent of the damage for ten, 25, 50, 100 years in the future," belatedly admits Governor Milliken, who has perhaps begrudgingly come to recognize the PBB disaster for what it truly is.

From day one the government has refused to deal with PBB in an honest manner. The harsh truth is that the government is not a watchdog for the public's health or welfare.

EULOGY

Farmer and PBB victim Robert Geering has this unique last will and testament: "When I die, I have in my will that I am to be autopsied to prove what PBB has done to my body. Then I'm to be cremated. My friends are going to spread my ashes around the capitol. If I am able to, I'll come back and haunt 'em!"

"Oooee! Do you have to put dat hot sauce on everything?!"

"I just wanted to say goodbye," Lehder said casually, and then blew the guerrilla away.

but families of their enemy."

A death threat hung over Colombia's minister of justice, Enrique Parejo. In 1986 the Colombian government appointed him ambassador to Hungary, presumably a safe posting. As Parejo stepped from his house on January 13, 1987, a would-be assassin pumped four bullets into his head. Parejo survived, but so did the credibility of Colombia's drug mafia to do what it says it will do.

The cocaine industry is so lucrative (in 1986 alone an estimated $35 billion worth of cocaine was brought into the U.S.) that for Lehder and his associates, money itself has become a problem. A 1985 federal crackdown of money laundering by financial institutions in South Florida and New York prompted the traffickers to put their greenbacks in cardboard boxes and fly them out of the U.S. on private aircraft. One jet intercepted in south Texas with a cargo of $6 million in cash was reportedly bound for a Panamanian bank, a bank of choice for the Medellin Cartel.

Medellin Cartel is actually a misnomer; its members do not live in that Colombian state. Lehder's operational base is the town of Armenia in Quindo state. There the drug baron founded a political movement; built a five-star hotel with a landmark statue of slain Beatle John Lennon, a condominium complex with a total area of 80,000 square meters; and established the newspaper Quindo Libre, which published techniques on how to increase marijuana production.

The would-be favorite native son of Armenia had so much money, an Armenia police report warns that Lehder was trying to buy up the entire state of Quindo and, after listing holdings and investments that include cars, farms, houses and aircraft, concludes that Lehder's fortune "can't be measured . . ."

The report mentions the Latin National Movement, Lehder's political party, which he founded in 1983. Lehder, like other cartel members, realized it was good business to be involved in politics. As one observer explains, "Lehder was very politically motivated. The drug mafia has to get involved in politics, or else the government will pass laws that are harmful to them."

"Prison has really changed you, hasn't it, Phil?"

Not just an expression of his ego, Lehder's Latin National Movement was an effort to make him respectable and a pillar of the community. Lehder compared himself to the U.S.'s Kennedy clan, saying their fortune began with liquor smuggling, and then they gained respectability. He shrewdly cultivated an image of a maligned Robin Hood, struggling for the good of his nation. To make his point, he donated large sums of money to fund low-cost housing and social-welfare projects in Armenia.

In describing Lehder as a politician, Cano says, "He was a lot like other politicians . . . he liked to tell people what they wanted to hear."

In his public speeches, Lehder attacked Israel, Jews, communists, the Colombian government, U.S. drug officials and the U.S.-Colombian extradition treaty. He fancied himself a political theorist, admired Adolf Hitler and took every opportunity to defend him.

Although Colombian government and church leaders warned the public of dangers that Lehder's politics posed for Colombia's democracy, people did follow the charismatic drug baron. At one point his party had 10,000 members. In the 1984 elections, Lehder's party elected two deputies and 11 council members in Quindo. The Colombian newspaper La Patria pointed out that traditional Colombian political leadership had a hard time speaking out against Lehder and his ideas: They had received money and support from Lehder and his followers.

Despite conservative political philosophy and avowed admiration for Nazism, Lehder developed a weird relationship with leftist guerrillas and was even suspected of having ties to Libya. U.S. Attorney General Robert Merkle, who's prosecuting the case against Lehder, describes the accused as "the personal embodiment of a narcoterrorist."

In 1979 Colombian guerrilla groups turned to kidnapping for ransom drug mafia millionaires, all of whom had vast available cash resources and an inability to turn to the law for help. After being wounded in a botched kidnap attempt, Lehder sent his men out after the guerrillas. According to legend, Lehder's men brought in one guerrilla and introduced him to the bandaged drug baron, who was sighting along his pistol barrel. "I just wanted to say goodbye," Lehder said casually, and then blew the guerrilla away.

Lehder and his associates formed an organization–Muerte a Secuestradores (Death to the Kidnappers)–to protect themselves. They announced their plans in pamphlets dropped over cities from light aircraft. After a brief war of ambush and assassination, traffickers and rebels agreed on a cease-fire and then a partnership. Several cocaine factories raided in the southern jungles in 1983 were guarded by guerrilla squads. "It's common knowledge now that out in the wilderness the guerrillas protect the drug laboratories," says El Tiempo's Enrique Santos. "They are given money in return so that they can buy weapons."

"Cocaine and marijuana," Lehder lectured, "have been an arm of struggle against American imperialism."

In a 1985 interview with a Colombian magazine, El Caleno, Lehder said his guerrilla nom de guerre is Rambo. He admitted providing weapons and supplies to the M-19 guerrilla group and was quoted as saying that he commanded a guerrilla force of 80.

In an audacious March 1985 press conference, Lehder met with a Spanish television crew in a jungle clearing. While the drug king sat comfortably on a wooden chair, millions of Colombians watched incredulously on national television.

"Cocaine and marijuana," Lehder lectured, "have been an arm of struggle against American imperialism. We have the same responsibility as he who takes up a rifle, he who plants coca, he who goes to the public plaza and denounces imperialism."

Lehder added, "I have returned to protest the extradition of nationals to the imperial state [U.S.]. A political and social battle against extradition is beginning to organize."

Above all else, Carlos Lehder feared extradition and trial in the U.S. He could bribe, intimidate and murder Colombian judges who stood in his way, but this couldn't happen in the U.S.

Colombia signed an extradition treaty with the U.S. in 1979. Belasario Betancur, predecessor to current president Virgilio Barco, handed ten Colombians over to U.S. authorities, plus two Americans and one West German, all wanted on drug-trafficking charges. Since 1982, the U.S. has petitioned the Colombian government for the extradition of nearly 100 people. So far, the only big name to be captured and extradited has been Carlos Lehder.

Many Colombians believe Lehder's capture was the direct result of the killing in December 1986 of Guillermo Cano, the respected newspaper editor of El Espectador. Cano had singled out Lehder as one of the most destructive influences in Colombia and editorialized in support of the extradition treaty. When Cano was gunned down outside his office, many Colombians believed Lehder to be the culprit. The public outcry stirred the government to pressure the drug mafia.

Lehder's astounding arrest led to speculation that other cartel members set him up, feeling that his attention-grabbing, publicity-seeking style was jeopardizing cartel activities. Some of Lehder's bodyguards suggested that fellow drug baron Pablo Escobar had set their boss up because, in pushing for a bigger share of the cocaine market, Lehder had caused tension within the cartel.

Colombians disagree about the setup theory. "I do not know if he was set up by the others, but Lehder's style was certainly the opposite of other cartel members," says Enrique Santos. "He was an embarrassment to them." Although at press time his trial had only begun, it is certain that Carlos Lehder will be given life. It is equally certain, however, that no more drug barons of Lehder's stature will find themselves behind bars in the U.S., awaiting trial. Presently Colombia has no legal weapons with which to take on the drug mafia.

In June 1987 an intimidated Colombia Supreme Court declared the extradition treaty unconstitutional in a 13 to 12 vote.

"The drug traffickers are very happy right now," observes one Western official close to the Colombian drug scene. "Extradition no longer exists. Corruption and intimidation may have reached the point of no return. They [the drug mafia] have the power to carry out their threats by assassination. Any judge that tries to convict a trafficker is most likely to get killed."

"Lehder's gone, but I'm afraid it's not going to make a difference," assesses Enrique Santos. "I wouldn't be surprised if, after Lehder is convicted, another wave of violence in Colombia doesn't occur."

Meanwhile, the crafty Lehder has offered to cooperate with prosecuting U.S. officials. No way, wary drug-enforcement officers say. "Lehder will not give us anything that we already don't know," says a DEA spokesman. "If Lehder were to cooperate and get a reduced sentence, it would have a severe impact on international law-enforcement efforts. Why should officials in other countries risk their lives to send the U.S. a fugitive only to have us plea-bargain with him? It would negate everything."

NEXT MONTH IN HUSTLER

May edition on sale March 22, 1988

EAT IT UP

Our May issue is Honey-filled, starting with lip-smackingly delicious porn star Jeanna Fine. Then it's double portions when two rough-and-ready cave girls get their primal nourishment by dining on each other. There's also a tow-truck driver who comes to the rescue of a tasty blonde only to end up helping himself–to a bimbo omelette. But the big meal is our May centerfold, a pendulous princess whose mega-mams must be seen to be believed. So line up at the trough, boys. There's plenty in the May HUSTLER for everyone.

HURTS SO GOOD

S&M clubs are up and swinging after being down for the count due to the AIDS threat and fascist-style Meese Commission tactics. To see how the pain palaces are faring, join writer Frank Fortunato as he takes "A Walking Tour of S&M Clubs."

MUSCLEHEADS

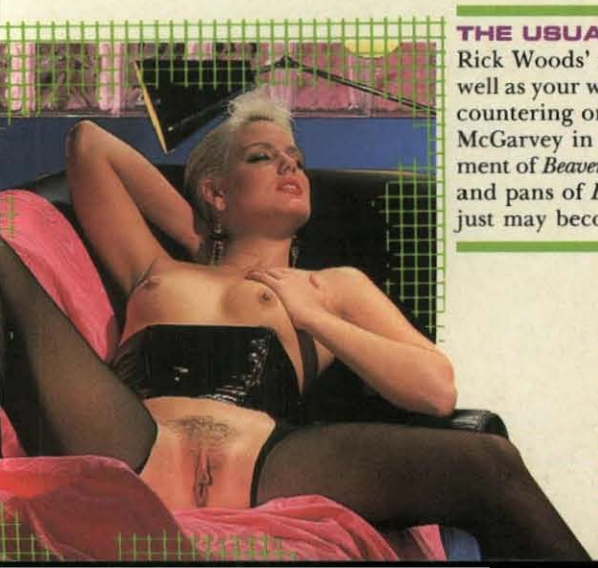

Notice how the antics of today's big-name athletes read much like a police blotter? Reporter Larry Wichman's "Jock Trouble" documents the abuses of these overdeveloped misfits whose problems range from drugs to sexual assault to murder. Don't miss Wichman's case studies as he examines not only the athletes themselves, but the coverups that blanket these pampered entertainers.

AIDS DISINFORMATION

What could be worse than contracting AIDS? Stealing the afflicted's hope and money, which is the angle of Ron Chepesiuk's AIDSWatch article, "AIDS Quackery," in which he divulges the schemes hucksters have created for AIDS sufferers.

THE USUAL SUSPECTS

Rick Woods' futuristic fiction, "Shethang," will blow your mind as well as your wad–but that's only if you don't have blueballs after encountering one of the "New-Age Ballbusters" described by Robert McGarvey in May's Sex Play. Then there's the usual bushy excitement of Beaver Hunt , the scorching adventures of Hot Letters, the picks and pans of Erotic Entertainment, and the riotous Bits & Pieces. May just may become your favorite month.
